Big Takeover Decade Away

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP)—Canada is within 10 or 15 years of the "point of no return" in increasing foreign control of its economy, T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said Monday.

He told a luncheon at nearby Kimberley the federal government has been willing to allow foreign interests to control two-thirds of the economy and now Prime Minister Trudeau "goes further."

"He's a continentalist. He makes no bones about it. He talks about a continental economic entity and that eventually means one political entity, dominated by the United States."

FINDINGS REPUDIATED

Douglas quoted the Watkins royal commission report as saying within 10 to 15 years 80 per cent of the economy will be foreign controlled "and they'll be able to take over the rest without investing any new money."

Yet, said Douglas, as he

Trudeau Looks at World

Outer Threat: The Have-Nots

EDMONTON (CP)—The overwhelming threat to Canada will not come from foreign investments or foreign ideologies, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

"It will come instead from the two-thirds of the peoples of the world who are steadily falling farther and farther behind in their search for a decent standard of living."

Trudeau, giving the convocation address at the University of Alberta, where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree, said the problem is not new, "but its very size, involving some 2,500,000,000, makes it qualitatively different from what it has been in the past."

Speaking softly—almost gently—throughout his 40-minute speech, Trudeau dwelt on the need for more aid to underdeveloped nations.

"Never before in history has the disparity between the rich and the poor, the comfortable and the starving, been so extreme; never before have mass communications so vividly informed the sufferers of the extent of their misery..."

Trudeau said that rights and privileges demanded and exercised by others "only serve to magnify to the underprivileged person the

Greeting to Stanfield

'You're Our Only Hope'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A five-hour tour by jet-powered helicopter swept Conservative Leader Stanfield into five scattered communities Monday to greet smiling Newfoundlanders.

Leaving into a numbing Atlantic wind that blew colder by the hour, Stanfield told his audiences they would best be served by voting June 25 for a Maritimer as prime minister. He said he had the experience to deal with the area's economic problems after his years as premier of Nova Scotia.

"I can't wave any magic wand over the island or promise any sudden prosperity," he told each group. "But to get results Ottawa has to work closely with the people of the Atlantic provinces."

Crowds of about 250 turned out to see the Conservative leader at the Avalon Peninsula towns of Placentia—first capital of Newfoundland under French rule during the 1700s.

—and the fisheries-based community of Carbonear.

Stanfield slipped one scheduled speech in favor of a 15-minute drive around Bell Island, where 6,000 people live almost entirely on social welfare payments following the 1966 closure of the Dominion Steel and Coal Co. iron ore mine.

The Bell Islander who drove Stanfield had mounted a sign on his car reading: "You're our only hope, Robert."

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson told his Labor party Monday night that failure to support him this week on a bill to curb wages could bring down the government and lead to mass unemployment in Britain.

Wilson confronted 143 Labor members of Parliament who oppose his price and incomes bill, a cornerstone of his efforts to make devaluation of the pound work. The group has trade union backing and forms more than a third of Wilson's strength in the House of Commons.

"The logical consequence would be a Tory government with a mandate for anti-trade union legislation based on severe unemployment," he said.

Wilson won applause for his remarks, but some 70 MPs were reported still unconvinced of the need for government powers to hold down wages over the next 18 months.

It was understood that the bill would make no direct reference to a 3.5 per cent ceiling for wage increases. Instead, government sources said, the bill would refer to figures in a document published this year that continue the ceiling.

Wilson faced the dissidents with his authority weakened by local election losses last week and concern for a shaky pound.

The pound dropped Monday to its lowest level since devaluation last November, $2.3824. But it recovered slightly, to $2.3865, as the chancellor of the exchequer, Roy Jenkins, denied charges of government lying about the state of Britain's financial reserves.

'I've Never Run from a Fight'

Perrault vs. Douglas

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Liberal leader Ray Perrault is expected to announce Wednesday that he will resign as an MLA and provincial party leader to contest the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Perrault said from Vancouver that he had called a press conference for 10 a.m. Wednesday to deal with rumors that he was entering federal politics.

Before meeting in private late Monday with the caucus of Liberal MLAs and members of his North Vancouver Capilano Liberal association executive to discuss his plans for the future, Mr. Perrault left little doubt as to his intentions.

"After meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau over the weekend, I feel satisfied that I can—if I decide to run and am nominated—make a useful contribution to this province and the country in the federal field," he said.

"Mr. Perrault said he found the prospect of being part of a new Liberal government under Mr. Trudeau 'tempting,' but added that it was a tough

School Clerks on Strike

Duncan Pupils Without Buses

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN—More than 3,000 of the Cowichan district's 5,000 public school students will not be catching the school bus this morning.

The striking clerks, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, refused a school board request to allow bus drivers to cross picket lines to make their runs.

The school board says school will go on, and parents are responsible for getting their children to school.

Classes Carrying On

At a meeting behind closed doors Monday night, Cowichan school board decided schools will not be closed.

"Classes will carry on as usual. Schools can be closed only by the authority of the minister of education or the medical health officer," chairman Joe Frumento said.

At noon Monday, the board met with the employees' representatives at the Duncan headquarters of the IWA.

Chairman Frumento said "unfortunately, CUPE would not agree to allow IWA drivers to cross picket lines.

"Parents are therefore requested to co-operate in the situation by transporting their children for the duration of the strike."

He said the board also re-

PARIS (AP)—American and each courteously promised to study the presentation of the other, and to meet again on Wednesday.

The central demand of Thuy's declaration delivered first at Harriman's invitation was as simple as it was stark:

"Since the special emissaries of Presidents Johnson and Ho Chi Minh—U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and North Vietnamese Minister of State Xuan Thuy—were careful to muffle their charges and counter-charges in relatively mild terms.

BOTH DETEST WAR

It was as if they were signaling a readiness to talk on and on, despite their public postures, to end a war both said they detest.

It was a predictable sendoff for the long awaited encounter, held amid the Gobelin tapestries and glittering chandeliers of the still-former Majestic Hotel within sight of the Arc de Triomphe.

Harriman and Thuy, seasoned in the graces of diplomacy, were on the whole territory of the DRV.

"That is the prime and most pressing legitimate demand of the DRV..."

To the relief of some on the American side, Thuy did not then go on to warn he will leave the conference if he does not get his way.

He spoke instead of the "serious attitude and good will" with which his side intends seeking an end to American military actions.

Hundreds of Thousands

Protesters Assail Gaullist Regime

PARIS (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of protesters against the de Gaulle regime surged through the heart of Paris Monday in the climax of a day of general strikes and demonstrations across France.

But strike effects were so spoty it was often difficult to tell one was on.

Workers, students, people of all ages and classes marched for three miles amid chants for President de Gaulle to resign and cries of "de Gaulle assassin!"

IN MEMORY

It was the largest such parade in memory through Paris and the strongest such demonstration against de Gaulle's 10-year-old Fifth Republic. He leaves today for Romania on a state visit.

After some concessions from the regime toward students who had rioted last week, the demonstrations took on a wide tone of criticism against the entire Gaullist structure.

De Gaulle talked with Premier Georges Pompidou Monday night—for the second time during the day—about the strike and demonstrations.

MARCH LINE

As the last of the demonstrators joined the line of march, it was estimated that there had been a solid cortege of 20 abreast for 3½ hours.

The parade headed peacefully into the Left Bank but armed police in battle dress massed at bridges crossing the Seine to block any attempts by students to cross to the Right Bank, where American and North Vietnamese diplomats were holding preliminary peace talks.

WORK STOPPAGE

The work stoppage itself, called by the country's four major labor unions to support student protests against police action during the last week of savage rioting in the Latin Quarter, was a near-failure.

Organizers had hoped for nationwide paralysis. But despite appeals by the unions and student groups for a total walkout of French workers there were only relatively minor disruptions in transport and electric power.

SUBWAY SUFFER

There were practically no mail deliveries in Paris, but service was continued in smaller towns. About half of Paris surface traffic were running and long-distance train service was normal.

Electricity service came back on in the afternoon after being cut in many areas, including the hotel that houses the American and North Vietnamese delegations here.

SOME FLIGHTS

A sit-down strike of traffic controllers resulted in suspension of all outgoing flights from Paris.

De Gaulle's government took steps to see to it that the Paris demonstration was kept as peaceful as possible. Pompidou bowed to student demands and granted a number of concessions, including freeing the last 21 students held by police in the aftermath of recent student rioting.

Pope Gave Communist a Gift!

ROME (AP) — Italy's Communists are delighted and some of their enemies incensed over the disclosure that Pope Paul gave Communist party leader Luigi Longo a Christmas present last December.

The glee and the consternation were heightened because national elections are a week away.

Political and cultural figures in Rome.

Pope Paul advocates better relations between the Vatican and the Communist world. But the gift to Longo shocked the Rome newspaper, Il Tempo, long considered the mouthpiece for the most conservative members of the Vatican Curia.

In a front-page editorial the paper says the Vatican did not send the present to the heads of all political parties. It says this "discrimination" gives Longo the chance to gloat during the election campaign.

Chance for Reason

IT WAS HARDLY to be expected that any immediate indication of a willingness for compromise would emerge from the Paris peace conversations.

But neither was it considered likely that the government in Hanoi would boast, at the very outset of what must at best be delicately balanced negotiations, of a victory for its arms in the newest offensive in South Vietnam and the advantage won by restriction of United States bombing of the North.

While the first claim can hardly be justified if the facts as presented by the United States and its allies are accepted, there is no reason to suppose invalid the North's assertion that its factories, now out of bounds to bombers, are working around the clock to furnish its forces with munitions. That they should make the most of such an opportunity is perfectly understandable, and certainly the Americans expected such a development. But the U.S. president offered the bombing pause primarily to encourage conversations, and not with any real hope of reciprocal de-escalation by the Communists.

It will not improve the atmosphere of the talks, however, if Hanoi continues to bait the Americans over the result of what was intended as a diplomatic gesture.

Paradoxically, North Vietnam's organization of victory celebrations "for the success of the liberation forces in the South," might be an encouraging sign. If they believe they have impressed the world, but more particularly their own people, that they have indeed made significant military gains, they might relax a little from their unyielding posture. It would be in character.

Having set the stage, so to speak, Hanoi may be prepared to allow its chief envoy in Paris, Mr. Xuan Thuy, to discuss the American proposition advanced by Mr. W. Averell Harriman: the restoration of a genuine buffer between the two Vietnams as a first step towards broader de-escalation.

Mr. Harriman sees this as an important test of good faith of the antagonists, and so will most other reasonable men.

A Worthy Objective

ALONG WITH congratulations to the Montreal Canadiens who by their four-in-a-row victories over the astonishing St. Louis Blues once again hold the Stanley Cup, goes the wish that all the expansion in the so-called National Hockey League should not be confined to the United States.

There is still plenty of good hockey played in Canada outside the National League arenas, but the sad fact remains that the professional action nowadays is where the money is, and new American franchises have created a situation where only Montreal and Toronto are able to compete.

However, there is hope for improvement in the situation in Canada. Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg recently expressed a desire to see a Canadian professional league in operation and mentioned nine centres across the country big enough and enthusiastic enough to support it. It is an excellent idea.

A Canadian National Hockey League might not be immediately competitive with the beat in the old organization but, on the basis of the experience of the expansion clubs in this season's campaigning, and particularly in the Stanley Cup finals, it would not be long before its members were challenging for the greatest trophy of them all.

Canada's little rinks still produce the best and biggest crop of potential hockey stars. A new professional league would have no trouble finding talent for a coast-to-coast enterprise. Its development is something that should appeal to national pride as well as to all lovers and supporters of sport everywhere, and to hopeful young players in particular.

The Long Road

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Robert Bonner appears to have in mind the possibility of a royal commission inquiry into British Columbians' opinions on the provincial liquor laws. This is the interpretation that readily attaches itself to his quoted remark that "I think we may be approaching the time when a general review of licensing might be desirable so that these opposing viewpoints might be properly aired."

Mr. Bonner was commenting specifically on Archbishop Harold Sexton's call for opening licensed bars after noon on Sundays and the opposing viewpoints on that subject, but his reference to a general review would indicate a broader inquiry than on Sunday drinking alone.

It will be welcome news to many people in the province that the government is even beginning to think of revising the liquor laws. But particularly if the possible changes are going to travel the royal commission route, it may be a long time yet before His Grace can refresh himself with a purchased alcoholic drink on a Sunday afternoon.

Government policy, Mr. Bonner says, has to try to reflect general public thinking and the difficulty is in determining what this is. But the arguments about liquor laws are all familiar enough, and if the politicians cannot tell how many British Columbians are on which side, a commission would scarcely be in a better position to do so.

However, there's nothing like a royal commission for delaying decisions.

Cheaper and Safer

WITH WARMER evenings coming along, Victoria firemen are once more being called out to extinguish beach fires. In one night recently they made three trips to the Dallas Road waterfront after midnight to put out fires presumably started by beach parties and left burning.

The remarkable thing about this is that beach fires are prohibited in Victoria city, and yet three of them can be set and enjoyed for a while at least by the persons responsible without anyone paying any attention before the culprits have left. A fire is not all that easily concealed.

The firemen are paid whether they are fighting fires or not, and the expense of running the engines down to the waterfront and back may not be great. But surely it would be more economical to have someone patrol the beaches and catch a few fire-setters, thus deterring others. And safer, too.

Fine, if it doesn't rain . . .

Powerful Civil Service Mandarins Invited To Sit in Trudeau's Policy-Making Circle

UNLESS all the signals are crossed, the Total Take-Over is much periously closer than even the most suspicious taxpayer may have feared.

The Total Take-Over, that is, of the policy-making and decision-taking apparatus of the federal government by the entrenched bureaucracy.

For now, the very senior civil servants — the "mandarins," as they are known on Parliament Hill — are to be sitting in with the new switched-on, souped-up committees of cabinet.

And they have that on Pierre Elliott Trudeau's publicly-planned word.

Which makes it the very best word there is in these political parts since that daring not-so-young man who has been prime minister for all of these last 21 swinging days.

The Civil Service brass has been the power-behind-the-government scenes ever since the big post-war build-up of the federal staff.

(It took off from a relatively modest 250,000 bodies on the payroll to currently just short of 400,000.)

Veneration of the federal civil servant which since has escalated into something approaching worship, coincided with the mushrooming of the staff establishment.

Deputy ministers were on their way to becoming the holy men of Ottawa they are today, the source of all government wisdom and the workers of its wonders.

But they did it all from inside the federal woodwork, the more talented of the deputies manipulating their ministers like ventriloquist's dummies.

They planned the federal projects and plotted the spending programs. And they pressured their ministers to push them through cabinet.

* * *

'They built an empire, so powerful that the super-mandarins among them were able to tell Conservative MPs to get lost when John Diefenbaker took his Tories to power in 1957, breaking 22 years of Liberal rule.'

The case of James Baikin, newly-elected Tory MP for Renfrew South was typical of many.

He went between quotation marks with the story — never denied that when he approached one of these mandarins to use legitimate departmental influence in helping to locate a federally assisted industry in his riding, all he got was a curt, "Don't bother me, boy."

Feet on his desk, the deputy told him it didn't matter that the project had the blessing of the prime minister, because the Conservative government, then in a sticky minority position, wasn't going to last out the year.

The Tories lasted six, and in one of them managed to squeeze out — with an invitation to resign — Mitchell Sharp, then deputy trade minister and the only casualty of the enclave of Liberal-appointed mandarins.

The mandarin took another long step to government executive power five years ago when former external affairs deputy minister Lester Pearson as prime minister took six of them, including Mitchell Sharp, into the cabinet.

The day he assumed office, they all gathered, the deputies from every department in the Centre Block chamber where cabinet meets, to welcome him with applause and cheers, at a remarkable ceremonial for supposedly politically neutral senior civil servants. There are news stories and photographic records of it.

The mandarin has another of "theirs own" in this prime minister, something that has all gone unnoticed, perhaps because Pierre Elliott Trudeau is such an unusual, colorful, and fascinatingly different leader.

Only Species of Animal That Is a Misfit

Man an 'Unhinged Killer'

Man is the only species of animal that is a misfit among even his own kind—an "unhinged killer", an Oxford University zoologist said here.

Prof. Niko Tinbergen, of the Oxford animal behavior research group, said man is the only mass murderer in the animal kingdom, that all other animals manage to settle disputes within their species without killing and that even bloodshed is rare within other species.

"A scientific understanding of human behavior that would lead to its control probably is the most urgent problem man faces today," Tinbergen said.

He was a principal speaker at a symposium on behavior sponsored by San Francisco State College, the San Francisco Institute of Animal Behavior and the California Academy of Sciences.

Tinbergen said human behavior is endangering the survival of the species and even of all life on earth, that the attitudes that determine human behavior have acquired "truly lethal potentialities."

People have a mental block against self-scrutiny and particularly against learning anything about their own behavior from that of other animals, he said.

The first question to be answered is what makes an animal fight, Tinbergen said, since aggression is the most "directly lethal" of our behaviors.

He said he does not include fighting between predators and their prey, since that kind of aggression is no threat to the civilization of earth.

It is "intraspecific fighting, that is, fighting between members of the same species, the kind that man most freely indulges in, that is the great danger." Tinbergen said many animals fight others of their own species—for example, in the mating season or when not enough food is available for all.

By GEORGE GETZE
From San Francisco

"But the striking paradox here is that man is the only species in which such fighting is actually destructive," Tinbergen said.

Among other animals, intraspecific fighting can be of advantage in the evolution of the species, but in man it threatens the species' existence, according to Tinbergen.

Tinbergen said most species of animals have evolved a delicate balance between advance and retreat, that is, between aggression and fear. Man's cultural evolution, which has far outpaced his genetic evolution, has upset this balance in the case of man.

"It is an old cultural phenomenon that warriors are both brainwashed and bullied into all-out fighting," Tinbergen said. "They are brainwashed into believing that running away is despicable."

Another such cultural excess is the use of long-range weapons.

"Very few airmen who are willing or even eager to drop their bombs 'on target' would be willing to strangle, stab or burn children, or, for that matter, adults, with their own hands," Tinbergen said.

If face-to-face with the victims of their bombs, the airmen would shrink in horror of killing because of the evident distress of the victims and their efforts to placate their attackers. Such a frank display of distress and such meek efforts to placate the enemy are the means by which other species avoid bloodshed and death within their species, Tinbergen said.

Humans, on the other hand, tend to avoid the use of these necessary social tools because of our cultural excesses, he said.

As a result, we have become "unhinged killers," and have created a social environment that, instead of insuring our survival, seems about to do the opposite.

South Vietnam Has Cause to Fear

By MURRAY SAYLE, from Saigon

The Americans today have 525,000 men in South Vietnam supported by 63,000 "free world" troops—South Koreans, Australians, New Zealanders, Filipinos and the Queen's Own Cobras, recently arrived from Thailand.

Their withdrawal, if this is to be negotiated in Paris, would leave the South Vietnamese in a difficult situation, to say the least. They have:

ARMED FORCES — The South Vietnamese army currently numbers 310,000; these are stiffened by 8,000 American advisers who operate in every South Vietnamese unit down to battalion level and sometimes company level.

AIR FORCE — For attacking guerrilla positions 18 F-5 jet fighter bombers, picturesquely called "freedom fighters," which have been seen in action bombing the suburbs of Saigon last week, and 20 helicopters which the South Vietnamese have used exclusively for medical evacuation of wounded.

The air force is completely outclassed by the North Vietnamese air force.

NAVY — The South Vietnamese navy largely consists of river gunboats and landing craft.

The South Vietnamese army has been largely indoctrinated with American methods designed to exploit overwhelming fire power to conserve American lives.

In the Saigon fighting last week it was using American methods—surrounding Viet Cong positions and calling in helicopter gunships, bomber strikes and artillery to demolish the area.

In the resulting rush of refugees many Viet Cong escaped, and reportedly equipment and ammunition is often carried concealed among household belongings to new Viet Cong positions.

The South Vietnamese legislature is working on plans for general mobilization which would raise the armed forces to 750,000 men. It would take at least a year to get this army into some sort of fighting shape and in the meantime the hard-pressed civil administration would probably totally collapse.

THE ECONOMY — On paper the South Vietnamese government looks prosperous, with reserves at the moment of $340,000,000. Almost all this has come from U.S. aid and the million dollars a day which the American forces are spending here.

South Vietnamese tax collection is almost non-existent. It averages less than $1.20 per head per year. More than 20 per cent of the government's revenue comes from a French-

The depletion of Viet Cong numbers has been greatly made up for by tremendous increases in firepower. Caches of Viet Cong arms which I saw in Saigon last week were all of Chinese manufacture. They included copious supplies of B-40 and B-50 rockets. The latter will easily penetrate armor of the heaviest American tank.

The Viet Cong are a match for the Americans in portable firepower and they outrun most of the South Vietnamese units.

Estimates of the percentage of the population under Viet Cong control vary, but in no calculations have I seen the National Liberation Front regarded as holding less than 15 to 20 per cent of the people—and for these areas the Liberation Front is the government, exercising the rights of taxation and conscription and issuing bonds at 5 per cent interest to be repaid at the end of the war.

In contrast the Saigon government has not thought it necessary—or doubt in view of the huge American aid—to issue any bonds at all by way of financing the war.

On the other side the Viet Cong still has 120,000 effectives, with about 80,000 South Vietnamese reinforcements operating in South Vietnam, including the two divisions fighting in the Hue area.

ADMINISTRATION — Corruption is widespread, but is probably no worse than in most Asian countries. The principal problems stem more from the disruption of the war and almost universal inefficiency and inexperience. A black market in building materials has not helped.

Everglades Grass Green Again

EVERGLADES, Fla. (UPI) — Two otters slid playfully down a rock and splashed into Taylor Slough, where two weeks ago Gov. Claude Kirk stood on the parched mud of the Everglades and worried about the drought.

But a week-long rain has wiped away the worries and wiped the drought in the Everglades and south Florida.

The sawgrass prairie is green again, many fires are out and the wildlife has returned to the lush hammocks that dot the world's biggest swamp.

"We've had nearly seven inches of rain this week and we're in very good shape now," said Ralph Maxwell, chief ranger of the Everglades National Park.

Two weeks ago, Taylor Slough was a dust bowl. Now the water is 2½ feet deep.

The drought-breaking rains came from a high pressure area that stalled last week over the northern Bahamas. Conservationists said another two weeks without rain could have caused permanent damage to the Everglades and its wildlife.

Everglades appear out of danger for a while.

But what about the future?

The outlook appears bright.

Kirk noted two weeks ago as he stood in the dust of Taylor Slough that "proper water management would prevent things like this. The emphasis until now has been on flood control. We need to go on now to water management."

It was man's attempt to prevent Lake Okeechobee from flooding that brought near-disaster to the Everglades.

The runoff from the 700 square miles of Lake Okeechobee kept the Everglades green, even during the normal dry periods. But the flood controllers built dikes across the Okeechobee watershed and impounded the water before it could reach the big swamp.

"We cannot say what was the actual cause of the abnormal

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) - Cuba Monday denounced the Soviet-American draft nuclear non-proliferation treaty and declared "its inalienable right to defend itself with any type of weapon."

"First and foremost among these measures would have to be complete demilitarization of the great powers, the total destruction of all nuclear weapons and their carriers, the complete liquidation of their arsenals, the absolute prohibition of the manufacture in the future of these weapons and the final cessation of tests," he said.

Saigon Drive Crushed

Airlift of 1,700 Frustates Hanoi Blockade

SAIGON (AP) — With 5,000 North Vietnamese pressing in for the kill, U.S. cargo planes have evacuated nearly 1,700 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops and civilians from mountain-ringed Kham Duc special forces camp near Da Nang, the U.S. command reported Monday.

At the same time, U.S. and South Vietnamese commanders declared the Viet Cong guerrilla offensive in Saigon crushed.

The North Vietnamese at Kham Duc shot down a four-engine U.S. C-130 Hercules transport loaded with South Vietnamese troops as it took off from the tiny airstrip Sunday.

The plane crashed and exploded, killing its six U.S. crew members and an "unknown number" of South Vietnamese soldiers and civilian irregulars, the command said. A C-130 can carry up to 100 passengers.

Driving hard to block the evacuation, the North Vietnamese killed 19 U.S. soldiers and 23 Americans and wounded another 123.

Twenty-nine South Vietnamese Army soldiers were known to have been wounded.

The U.S. command said 300 Communist soldiers were killed in the fighting that erupted Friday and ended when the final cargo plane lumbered off the airstrip near dusk Sunday. It added that air strikes later killed more.

On Saturday, the command said, "I find it difficult to express adequately the strong sense of repugnance to call established standards and norms of civilized society that the continuance of this savage war evokes. I do not see how one can build a democratic government or a stable society over huge graveyards and with the participation of enormous refugee camps.

CONSEQUENCES

"I also regard such bombing as of questionable morality and doubtful legality," he asserted.

He dealt at length with the Vietnam conflict and with its possible consequences.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the real issue of the Vietnam war has gradually become not so much the political rightness or wrongness of one side or the other as the savage conduct of the war itself."

"I find it difficult to express adequately the strong sense of repugnance to call established standards and norms of civilized society that the continuance of this savage war evokes. I do not see how one can build a democratic government or a stable society over huge graveyards and with the participation of enormous refugee camps.

CURE WORSE

"I know that advocates of escalation prescribe more drastic and large-scale destruction; but such senseless escalation would only produce a cure that is infinitely worse than the disease."

The secretary-general voiced doubt that either side would win a clean-cut military victory, despite the ability of North Vietnamese and of the United States to "rain down death and destruction in the form of bombs, napalm and rockets."

FOBTENT NATIONALISM

Thant said: "The Vietnam War has often been represented as a 'holy war' against communism. I regard this concept as entirely erroneous. I personally feel, and have always felt, that nationalism is a main motivating force in Vietnam. Nationalism is a force which is more potent than political ideology."

He said he did not consider unification of North and South Vietnam an immediate problem.

"It is a matter which is decided upon in due course when the overall situation is much more settled."

Thant expressed the hope that the Paris talks "should be the beginning of the long road toward an enduring peace."

POSITION OF STRENGTH

"No pretext should be offered and no excuse accepted by either side to halt the movement toward gradual normalization. It may be inevitable that the talks should be protracted and that meanwhile both sides should seek to improve their military situation so as to be able to negotiate from a position of strength."

"But I do hope that the prevention program designed to win peasants' loyalty.

Radio Hanoi, however, regarded the offensive that began May 5 as victorious and declared the South Vietnamese government was making its last stand against the Viet Cong in Saigon.

"The fact that the United States has to use tanks and armored vehicles in the fight in Saigon is a sign of the gravity of the situation," said a Vietnamese-language broadcast.

One Saigon newspaper Monday described Loo as a "bride who has had to serve two difficult mothers-in-law," referring to the known differences between Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky.

The most frequently mentioned man as a possible successor to Loo in the prime ministership is Tran Van Huong, a 65-year-old lawyer

Herring Ban Likely This Season

VANCOUVER (CP) — A complete ban on commercial herring fishing for the 1968-69 season is likely to be imposed by the fisheries department.

* * *

R. E. McLaren, assistant director, Pacific region, said Monday the department is considering the ban following higher spawning deposits than last year. But only in the Johnston Strait area were the deposits above the average for the past 10 years.

Last season the B.C. herring catch was only 18,000 tons, compared with 133,000 in 1966-67.

How to never get caught ...with your menus down

Ever noticed how the month of May brings out the "visiting urge"? Your friend, Gus, who borrowed your ladder last year . . . drops in with it. Uncle Horace . . . his "rheumatiz" warmed up . . . drops in. Mrs. Whatsit from your old street . . . drops in. And what do you feed all these unexpected "drop-ins"? Why, hot 'n' hearty eats from Swift.

Herby Dogs—made with Swift's Premium Wieners, natch!

Nothing turns an unexpected gathering into an impromptu party like Swift's Premium Wieners. And when you do them up with these flavoury fixin's folks feel your welcome is extra warm.

To  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup soft butter add  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup grated parmesan cheese, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard and 1 teaspoon marjoram. Butter opened hot dog rolls generously and place under the broiler to brown slightly. Fill with hot Swift's Premium Wieners and serve with appropriate garnishes.

Swift's Prem—on a spit with Lemon Barbecue Sauce

If your barbecue and spit are handy . . . here's a treat that cooks while you discuss the spring gardens. Prem roasted this way is truly delicious—it bastes itself! And all the juicy pork and lean beef add up to a triumph of meaty goodness. And here's the Lemon Barbecue Sauce to add the final touch.

Combine a mashed garlic clove with  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup Swift's Jewel Oil,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons chopped onion,  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon black pepper and  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon dried thyme. Allow sauce to stand  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour to blend flavours. Place two Prem luncheon meat loaves on barbecue spit. Baste Prem with Lemon Barbecue Sauce as it heats. (Prem may also be prepared on your broiler rack and basted at intervals.)

Spinach Timbales with Swift's Premium Bacon

Take Swift's Premium Bacon . . . and sizzle it up slowly to what we call its "Prime taste point" . . . (That's just the right amount of sizzle to bring out the special deep-sugar cure and fragrant hardwood smoking that makes Swift's Premium Bacon so unique). Then serve those luscious rashers with fried eggplant and Spinach Timbales. We make the timbales like this . . .

To 2 packages of frozen spinach, cooked and drained, add 2 tablespoons bacon fat, 2 beaten eggs, 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Pour into greased custard cups and bake in a pan of water at  $350^{\circ}$  for 25 mins.

Swift's Premium, Swift's and Prem are registered trade marks of Swift Canadian Co., Limited, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Moving Stock Going Public

Most people familiar with young families know something about one of British Columbia's greater domestic stories of the era, the Jolly Jumper.

This spring-heeled jack con-traption, which is for the youngest generation what the pogo stick and the trampoline are to older children, was invented a few years ago by a North Vancouver woman who had seen Indian women harnessing their children to swaying tree boughs to give them leg muscle exercise.

From her observations Mrs. Olivia Poole, a North Vancouver grandmother, designed the popular Jolly Jumper, but her initial efforts to market the product through Poole Manufacturing of Vancouver were not successful.

In 1959 the JJ was taken up by International Pedalite Products, another Vancouver firm. Its fame as a child's comforter became widely known and appreciated.

The latest turn in the success story is that Jolly Jumper is going public.

A company has been formed in Toronto to promote and widen the market under the leadership of the well-known advertising firm of Ogilvy and Mather.

July Jumper Canada Ltd. will issue shares at the modest rate of $10 per unit, each consisting of five common shares and a warrant to buy one extra common at $3.

HERRING CATCH BLAMED

The serious decline in last year's herring catch and international jurisdictional disputes have left B.C. Packers with an operating loss of $81,837 in the nine months period ended Dec. 31, 1967.

The company has changed its fiscal year from March 31 to Dec. 31.

In the previous fiscal year B.C. Packers had a net income of $1,126,869. Losses were also sustained by Western Canada Whaling and J. H. Todd and Sons, in which the company has a half-interest.

The union dispute immobilized the fishing fleet at Prince

Rupert, Vancouver and Victoria for four months, while the 1967 summer herring catch was only one-third of normal.

DIVIDEND INCREASED

First-quarter earnings of Maher Shoes and the Copp group of stores were higher than a year ago and the company has increased its dividend rate from 48 to 56 cents a year.

The first quarterly dividend at the new 14-cent level will be paid July 1. The company expects to add 25 more store units this year with 18 existing stores scheduled for renovation.

"This is a withdrawal" on the part of the UAW, Meany said at a news conference in explaining that the AFL-CIO constitution provides for automatic suspension when dues are three months behind.

Reuther and other leaders of the 1,500,000-member UAW, largest of the 12 unions in the AFL-CIO, have sharply criticized Meany's leadership as undemocratic and stagnant for the last two years.

The UAW at its recent convention in Atlantic City voted to increase its approximately $1,000,000-a-year dues in escrow instead of continuing payments to the AFL-CIO, pending possible settlement of Reuther's criticisms of the federation.

Reuther for the last two years has been threatening to pull his union out of the federation unless the AFL-CIO adopts his demands for internal reform, makes greater efforts to organize workers and institutes many other policy changes.

Meany said losing the UAW would reduce the AFL-CIO's total membership to 12,500,000 in the United States, plus another 1,000,000 in Canada.

Meany said there was no discussion of the UAW demand for a special convention, but noted that the federation had agreed sometime ago to call such a meeting if the UAW would agree in advance to attend and to abide by the decision of the convention.

"I don't know what the quarrel is all about," Meany said.

Wakeham and Trapp Lead Qualifying Test

VANCOUVER (CP) — Victoria golfers Bill Wakeham and Vaughan Trapp led six golfers Monday in qualifying trials for the Canadian Open next month in Toronto.

Wakeham scored a 68 for the early lead at Vancouver Golf Club and Trapp shot a 71 for second place.

About 12 more golfers will attempt to qualify in trials here Friday.

The two low scorers of the 12 golfers will be eligible for the national tournament.

A sparkling 587 net, including the high single game of 219, Hughes and Derek Dorkin Sunday brought Alden Govenlock the senior boys' singles championship in the Victoria Junior Bowling Association's tenpin tournament at Mayfair Lanes.

Govenlock, bowling to a handfull of 51, finished with a gross 638 to defeat runner-up David Smith, 428-427, by 41 pins.

Sheila Clark, bowing to a 153 handloop, was the senior girls' singles with a gross 581. Liz Hess, who had the high scratch of 400 for her three games, was second with 468.

Vincent Sequira and Jerry Hansen both bowled exceptionally well in the bantam boys' singles with the former rolling a net 465 to Hansen's net 462 and winning by 15 pins with a 12-pin bulge in handicap. The 36-year-old Hall, who had to be coaxed away from his farm near Edmonton before the season started, receives $1,500 in being selected as the winner in the poll conducted by the National Hockey League's board of governors.

Hall played in all 18 St. Louis playoff games, including eight overtime contests.

He was beaten for 45 goals, an average of 2.47 goals a game.

Wind Defied*Circus
Ends
With Bang

By SUSAN MAYSE

There was a loud bang, and the helmeted head of 22-year-old Hugo Zucchini emerged from a sequin-spangled capron into the teeth of a 38-mile-an-hour wind.

He dropped on his stomach into the safety net, about 20 yards away. The crowd of 1,500 oohed and clapped.

It was the finale of the Gatti-Charles Circus, which opened Monday afternoon in the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre to an almost full house. Most of the audience were children under 10.

OLD FAVORITE

Cotton candy, an old favorite, was everywhere, including people's hair.

Aerial acrobatics, both indoors and out, held everyone's attention. Two groups often performed at the same time in different rings.

Despite the skill of the human performers, the animals stole the show. The stars were the elephants, the chimpanzees, and a bear.

OLD HANDS

All of them, said head trainer Charles Allen, are old hands at performing. They have appeared many times in movies and on television, as well as in the circus.

The highlight and grand finale of the show was the human cannonball. Zucchini, son of the man who 20 years ago introduced the act, was fired from a cannon to land safely in a net, as he will be twice daily until Thursday.

Both this and the other outdoors act, a group of trapeze artists, were in some danger from the strong winds that were blowing at the time, but there were no accidents.

NOTED GUEST

Lieutenant-Governor Pearson will attend this evening's performance of the circus, which is being sponsored by the Victoria City Police Union.

Performances are at 4:30 and 8 p.m.

Proceeds will go to the Solarium, Cerebral Palsy, the Victoria Police Youth Band, and the Victoria Boys' Club.

Victoria Riding*No Candidate For Socreds

Victoria's Social Credit party decided Monday not to field a candidate in the June 25 federal election.

This is the first time since the federal election of 1949 the Victoria Socreds have not been in the race. Herbert Bruch, national party president, said after the meeting.

"HOPE THEY CHANGE"

The nomination meeting in a Cook Street Hall was attended by 63 members who approved an executive recommendation that they "do not nominate a candidate at this time."

"I hope they change their minds," Mr. Bruch said. "I'd like to see a full slate of 23 Social Credit candidates in B.C."

*"Cannonball" soars in EsquimaltHospital Phasing-Out Plan Irks Veteran Legionnaire

The phasing-out of Veterans Hospital—recommended by the recent Agnew, Pachism report—was attacked Monday by a member of the Royal Canadian Legion, who called on Prime Minister Trudeau to back up promises made in 1964 by Prime Minister Pearson.

Carl Fallon of 3041 Donald, a former zone commander and president of the Pro Patria Branch, had this to say:

"The Legion is disturbed at the efforts that seem to be being made to take the control of the Veterans' Hospital from its present officers and place it in the hands of other authorities."

INTERACTION

The Agnew, Pachism report recommended the hospital be integrated with Royal Jubilee.

Mr. Fallon recalled Prime Minister Pearson's promises in August, 1964, at the time arrangements were being made for the transfer of certain DVA hospitals.

Mr. Pearson said, at the time, there would be no change which will remove control of veterans' admissions and their treatment and their dormitory care from the department of veterans' affairs. Moreover, there will be full consultation by the department with veterans' organizations in the area before any changes are made."

ONE CONCERN

At that time, Mr. Pearson said the government had only one concern: "to guarantee to our veterans the high standard of treatment and service to which they are entitled and must continue to be entitled—even in the face of the doctor shortage and the changing nature of the patient load in our DVA hospitals."

INTERACTION

The prime minister summed up the question when he said the government was "not following a rigid course or one which is intended in a short time to solve all hospital and related problems. We are not going to rush into any radical change, and we are not going to make any changes of any kind that will operate against the interests and the welfare of the veterans."

FOR BACKUP

Mr. Fallon called Monday on the present prime minister, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, to back up Mr. Pearson's promises.

PROVIDED FOR

He also called on the government to make sure the Royal Canadian Legion had a representative at a meeting in Victoria May 29, when Dr. K. S. Ritchie, director-general of treatment services, will be here to discuss the matter with the medical advisory board of the Veterans' Hospital, representatives of Royal Jubilee Hospital and the provincial government's health and welfare department.

STILL TIME

However, he pointed out, there is still time for the Victoria party to nominate a candidate.

Victoria's Progressive Conservative federal candidate Eric Chairman said Monday night, that he saw advantages in the absence of Socred candidate.

AVERAGE AGE

"I rather expect it will make the issue more clear cut," he said, "and for this reason they shouldn't be handed over to another hospital."

He said the average age of First World War veterans in Victoria was 75, and the average age of those of the Second World War almost 50.

NATO Test*QORs Head Norse

The 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, based in Victoria, will leave next month for Norway to serve as the key force in a NATO exercise in the far north.

The defence department announced at Ottawa that the battalion and support elements will be flown to Norway beginning June 3 for an exercise near Tromso, 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Called Polar Express, the exercise will include armed forces from Norway, Britain, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and the United States.

The Victoria contingent includes 700 men and 100 vehicles.

In addition to the Queen's Own will be men from the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Petawawa, Ont., a squadron of Royal Canadian Engineers from Chilliwack, and a logistic support group from Calgary. The exercise ends June 22.

Victoria became an international meeting place Monday for 70 travel agents from Europe and California.

They came here on the first leg of a five-day B.C. tour sponsored by the provincial government and Canadian Pacific Airlines, which operates direct flights from Vancouver to San Francisco and Amsterdam.

MORE RAPIDLY

"There were many unrelated things he said that made me realize his mind was deteriorating more rapidly than I had thought," said Mrs. Law.

She said her husband had been taking a muscle relaxant, 22s, and Benzedrin—a preparation to help a person stop smoking.

She had been afraid that he was taking too many pills and had telephoned the doctor's office to inform him of this.

Poison Inquest Told:*Separation Sought At Time of Death

Adrien Augustus Stuart Law was seeking a legal separation from his wife at the time of his death, a coroner's jury was told in Saanich Law Court, Monday night.

A letter, which his wife, Muriel Beverley Law, said she received two days before his March 24 death, was read when the inquest was resumed, after its adjournment on May 6.

In it lawyer Ian Stewart said Mr. Law had a serious heart condition and had been told he would die within four months if tension in the home was not lifted.

The letter suggested Mrs. Law find an apartment within two weeks. It also promised monetary settlements.

NOT ACCIDENTAL

When the inquest opened last week, the jury was told that Mr. Law's stomach contained a lethal dose of potassium cyanide.

Saanich Det. Sgt. Robin Stewart told the jury of going to the Law home at 2582 Macdonald Drive on April 9.

He had told Mrs. Law that from information he had received her husband's death couldn't have been accidental.

"It was either murder or suicide," he had told her.

LOADED PISTOL

After they had talked for a while she had given him a fully loaded .45 calibre automatic pistol.

He had searched the house and found a bottle which, according to earlier testimony, contained crystals identified as potassium cyanide.

In a glass tobacco jar in the room in which Mr. Law had been found dead, Sgt. Stewart said he also found a small glass vial containing white particles, which according to earlier testimony were identified as cyanide.

FROM HOUSE

Sgt. Stewart told the inquest, presided over by Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre, that he had checked with VLA, under which the house was being purchased, and had been told that Mrs. Law could have been evicted from the house.

"But upon the death of her husband she inherits the home and it goes into her name," he added.

"If the VLA statute is as far-reaching as that it should be destroyed," remarked the coroner.

WITH DOCTOR

Mrs. Law testified under the protection of the B.C. Evidence Act and the Canada Evidence Act.

She said her husband had had difficulty with his health going back about one year.

She had made an appointment for him with his family doctor, who had later told her that Mr. Law was taking 22s because of tension in the home.

"I was unaware of tension in the home," said Mrs. Law.

She said that in 1953, a year after their marriage, Law had attempted suicide in the garage of their home.

She had found him in the car, and he was unconscious.

DRINKING STOPPED

The attempt had come after a drinking bout, but Mr. Law had joined Alcoholics Anonymous in 1954, and had not had a drink since then.

At the time of his death she was sure he was worried about pressure of his job.

She had received letters from Mr. Law's lawyer on March 8 and on March 22 informing her that her husband wanted a separation.

She said that after receiving the letters she had told him she would kill both him and herself.

"I didn't think about what weapon I would use," she said.

"I had been aware for some time that he was mentally deteriorating from time to time," said Mrs. Law.

"When the pressure was on he was apt to be agitated and say irrational things," she added.

MORE RAPIDLY

"There were many unrelated things he said that made me realize his mind was deteriorating more rapidly than I had thought," said Mrs. Law.

"I was surprised by the decision," she said.

She said her husband had been taking a muscle relaxant, 22s,

and Benzedrin—a preparation to help a person stop smoking.

She had been afraid that he was taking too many pills and had telephoned the doctor's office to inform him of this.

Mr. Law had spoken about leaving her, but had never been very definite as to why. "Except that I never left him alone," she said.

She had never suspected that there was another woman.

"There was a woman who took photographs with him," said Mrs. Law, adding that photography had been her husband's hobby.

"There were people who thought it was unusual, but I didn't think it was. It was just someone interested in the same hobby of photography as him, and who happened to be a woman."

Mr. Law had told her that she could stop nagging him.

"That wasn't true at all," she said.

The coroner suggested the average Victoria woman would have been jealous of a woman who went out with her husband sharing his hobby.

"Who suggested I am an average woman?" asked Mrs. Law.

"I was secure," she said. "I packed lunches for them both."

She had been told in May, 1967, that her marriage was in jeopardy, but they had had a lovely summer together after that.

The inquest will continue in Saanich Law Courts at 7:30 p.m., May 22, when the coroner is expected to give his summary, and the jury to consider a verdict.

Organist, pianist Earl Grant fills arena with deep tones

She had wide, inviting eyes and more curves than the Marshet.

It was very nice just to watch her sitting there all dressed up like a kitten.

But when she opened her mouth to sing and the whole picture was shattered. She sounded exactly like a vacuum cleaner.

It was early and the crowd was small, but Grant, who will headline the stage show until the fair closes Saturday, held his audience. This included exhibitors who forgot about the business at hand to listen to him.

The exhibitors have filled every available space this time. There are 185 booths in the curling rink, with offerings of just about everything remotely connected with the home industry.

The sound on the set had been turned down and the attractive but noseless singer wasn't much competition for the vacuum cleaner, except possibly that she was somewhat more shapely.

There was nothing quite so outlandish blocking the way of Earl Grant when he bounded front and centre a few minutes later in the arena. One of America's top entertainers, the vibrant Grant sounded exactly like himself whether he was singing, or playing the organ and piano.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Last week I slipped in the shower and broke my shoulder. It was 10:00 p.m. and my husband, Roy, was playing poker at the Elk Club. When I telephoned him he said, "Gee, that's a shame. Take a taxi to the hospital. I am $60 ahead now and I'd better stay in the game and make the hospital bill." He suggested I call my mother if I wanted "company."

Last summer when my brother cut his hand on a beer bottle, Roy fainted. I had to bind up my brother's hand and drive him to the doctor's office. When our children came down with poison ivy (they weren't very sick but they looked a mess), Roy suddenly remembered a time when he was immature, and he took a duck whenever he sees something coming. In addition to being immature, Roy is also inconsiderate, and that's a mighty unattractive combination. Lots of luck.

She's Asked for It

Dear Ann Landers: When people write and ask for advice you are supposed to help them, not insult them. Your answer to Upperwick, the secretary who didn't know what to do about her fresh boss with Roman hands was no help. You said, "Kitcher-kiddin'. A 23-year-old girl knows how to put an eight-handed idiot in his place—if she really wants to, that is."

Did it ever occur to you that some girls have to work for a living? They can't take a chance on offending the boss and losing their job—and maybe getting blacklisted—if he is a louse.

Before you answered that letter you should have talked to some honest-to-goodness working girls. — ONE MYSELF.

Dear One: I did talk to some honest-to-goodness secretaries. Mine.

The girls agreed unanimously that, almost without exception, the secretary who has trouble keeping her boss in line has asked for it. Also, no secretary gets pawed more than once unless she enjoys it. Another point brought out by my secretaries was that every city has a few executives who was out of town—60 miles away—with car trouble.

There must be a reason for this. What is it?—WIFE OF A LITTLE BOY.

Dear Wife: Your answers appear in your signature. Roy is too immature to face unpleasantness or discomfort, so he takes a duck whenever he sees something coming. In addition to being immature, Roy is also inconsiderate, and that's a mighty unattractive combination. Lots of luck.

Starting the Finishing

Journeywoman bookbinder Mrs. Dorothy Bennett (left) and young apprentice bookbinder Miss Rosemary Pataude start an operation on the folding machine. Women members of the printing trade do no heavy work but accomplish a great deal in finishing work on many varieties of printed material.—(Robin Clarke)

Journeywomen Scarce But Work Important

By EILEEN LEAROYD

There aren't all that many journeywomen around. When they are around, they are usually bookbinders.

The title "journeywoman" implies the printing trade, and the main department open to women is the bookbinding department. Just like their brother printers, they must serve a three-year apprenticeship before gaining the ancient title—which means "full day's work, or a full journey's work."

They do not operate presses, linotypes, cutting machines or do any very heavy work. They are not, for example, allowed to carry a stack of paper that weighs more than 40 pounds.

One job the women do particularly well is collating or gathering—also called "inter-leaving"—where various colors of paper (as in receipt books) are alternated with carbons or duplicates.

How did they get into their rather unusual job?

listens to Mrs. Dorothy Bennett, a full-fledged journeywoman bookbinder who has been at her trade for more than 20 years.

Together with another woman bookbinder, Mrs. Alice Grant, they stitch up everything from receipt books to programs, glue sketch pads, operate the folding machine, round card corners, assemble cheques and receipt books and in general to the finishing work of most printing.

They do not operate presses, linotypes, cutting machines or do any very heavy work. They are not, for example, allowed to carry a stack of paper that weighs more than 40 pounds.

One job the women do particularly well is collating or gathering—also called "inter-leaving"—where various colors of paper (as in receipt books) are alternated with carbons or duplicates.

How did they get into their rather unusual job?

Mrs. Bennett, Victoria-born, comes from a family which has been connected with the printing trade for some generations and it seemed natural for her to follow the trend.

She lives with her husband who is a rigger—salt-maker—at the Dockyard and two children, a boy and a girl, at 758 Linkleas Avenue.

Miss Pataude, who hails from Duncan, formerly worked as a food service attendant at Venture. When changing jobs, she told the unemployment office she "liked to sew."

"Ah!" they said, "a bookbinder sews, and there is an opening at Acme-Buckle."

"How do you like the noise in the shop?" I shouted.

"What noise?" she shouted back.

There's a girl who really likes her job. I thought to myself as I left her happily-ever-after sewing her books.

The accomplished violinist never won. Neither did the would-be Bobby Breen, nor the aging magicians. The audience's sympathies always went to a little fat kid who stood miserably in the bright lights, swaying back and forth, the hem of her dress in her mouth, singing two octaves off key, "Animal Crackers In My Throat."

Within another year or two I had advanced to the radio children's hour. This was a break for I had begun to grow and my thump now came out sound and no audience loves a growing fat kid.

Radio opened up a whole new adventure in personal appearances. I played the Women of the Moose Installation, the Fried Egg and Sauerbraten Supper at the lodge hall and finally, the summit, a week's engagement at the Blue Moon Eat'n Drink.

The dance routines were enough to stagger the imagination. There was the waltz on roller skates, a jazz number on a pair of home-built stilts-steps, and the rhumba with a jumping rope. But the finale was always the same... the military tap. No one who saw it ever forgot it.

I wore a white statin leotard with buttons. Attached to the shoulders by buttons and to the wrists by a piece of elastic was a flag.

During the last eight bars, the band would get louder, the dancing faster and the flag would be unfurled. Women would jump to their feet cheering. The bartender would stand erect and drunks who had been out for three days often holstered their glasses in salute.

Stage experience... Was that when it was? And all the time I thought my parents were punishing me for being fat!

Paris Priest Given New Heart

From AP, UPI

The world's newest heart transplant patient, a 45-year-old Roman Catholic priest, regained consciousness in Paris Monday and was in "very satisfactory" condition 24 hours after his operation.

Rev. Charles Boulonge, a member of the Dominican order at Marseilles, became the 14th man to undergo a heart graft when he received Sunday the heart of a 38-year-old man who died of a cerebral hemorrhage Friday. The organ had been kept "alive" with an artificial blood supply.

Known as Father Damien, the priest had had 20 coronary attacks and had been unable to work or write for the last year.

A medical bulletin said the function of his brain, heart and kidneys are in all respects normal.

Publicity Criticized

Frederick West, 65, operated on London 10 days ago, was reported "making good progress."

Charles Dubost, head of the surgical team that performed the Paris operation, declined to see reporters. Criticism by the French Order of Physicians of the publicity surrounding Fr. Damien's first heart transplant seemed to have resulted in a call for outcry for such operations.

The first two heart transplant patients in France, Clovis Robson, 66, and Eli Joseph Raynes, 55, survived a little more than two days and never recovered consciousness.

One problem in the case of

Could Heirs Sue?

Bruce represents Alfred Lee Brazen, 15, who said he did not "understand why they'd take his heart out like this and try to pin it now on me."

Brazen and Robert Patterson, 15, were charged with beating Nickis fatally in a fight outside a lounge April 21. He died last Tuesday of massive brain damage according to an autopsy.

Both doctors disagreed on the time of death. Nickis' doctor said he died at 11:30 a.m. EDT but a hospital pathologist extended Nickis' life even alive until as 1 p.m. EDT because his heart was beating faintly with the aid of a mechanical respirator. The autopsy showed the time of death as 11:30 a.m. EDT.

Assistant district attorney Joe Moes said the heart transplants could bring other legal problems.

"Suppose you donate your heart and the recipient lives for another 20 years," Moes said.

Would your heirs be entitled to some portion of the income earned by the recipient during that decade?

"Suppose your heart does not work the recipient. Could the heirs of the recipient sue the heirs of the donor for supplying a faulty heart?"

King Left Little of It

Slain Leader Practised His Anti-Money Views

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., often said money corrupts. And he practised what he preached — he left little of it.

Most of the monetary legacy he would have left his widow and four young children he gave away during his lifetime — the royalties from his books and his $30,000 Nobel Peace Prize money.

He left no estate, except the house he lived in and two joint bank accounts — both too small to be probated.

He had faith, said a close associate, that his family would be cared for.

"If somebody asked him for money and he had it, he would give it to them," said Rev. Andrew Young, a close friend and associate of King.

"When I took his wallet out of his pocket at the hospital in Memphis, I found a lot of credit cards but there was no money in it."

King

ference, which he headed, carry about $25,000.

Young said singer Harry Belafonte, a longtime friend of King's, had taken out an insurance policy on King primarily for the children. The singer had for years paid the salary of a governess for the children, Young added.

* * *

His $30,000 Nobel Peace Prize money, which was tax free, he gave to the SCLC, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, Morehouse College and Ebenezer Church, of which he was co-pastor with his father.

Several years ago, King estimated his annual income as $10,000 to $12,000. Part came from his church salary of $8,000 and parsonage allowance and the balance from his speeches.

He accepted no salary from the SCLC.

Examination Refused

Brown Tape Security Matter

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Lansing Mitchell ruled Monday it "would compromise the national security" to allow defense attorneys to examine an FBI recording of a conversation involving Rap Brown.

The justice department presented the sealed recording to the judge to show it had nothing to do with a federal firearms charge against Brown.

After turning down the defense motion to examine the recording, Mitchell began the selection of jurors for Brown's trial.

Brown, head of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee, is charged with carrying a carbine across state lines while under another indictment.

The justice department said the electronic recording of Brown's conversation was made accidentally during a security surveillance.

Defense attorney William Kunster asked the trial be delayed until he could appeal Mitchell's decision to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals also at New Orleans. Mitchell, as he had on eight previous defense motions Monday, denied the delay.

The judge released the recording documents and sent them on to the appeals court for examination when Kunster does file his appeal.

Kunster said the recording was relevant to the justice department case against Brown. He called the secret viewing of the documents by the judge a star chamber proceeding.

Unqualifieds Cancel Saskatchewan Vote

REGINA (CP) — The result of voting in the Kelvington riding during the Saskatchewan election last Oct. 11 was declared void Monday by Justice M.A. MacPherson, who said at least 14 unqualified people cast ballots. However, he said, there was no intent of wrong, "no villain in this piece, no fraud . . . I want that to be expressly understood."

A Liberal got 2,440 votes, a New Democrat 2,432 and a Conservative 659. Liberals now lead the NDP 34-34 in the 59-seat legislature.

U.S. Drug Body

Chloramphenicol Could Be Fatal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said Monday use of the antibiotic chloramphenicol may cause fatal blood diseases like leukemia and aplastic anemia. It cautioned physicians to use the drug discriminately.

"In addition, there have been reports of aplastic anemia attributed to chloramphenicol which later terminated in leukemia. Blood dyscrasias have occurred after both short-term and prolonged therapy with this drug."

The FDA said the risk of aplastic anemia from use of the drug was estimated at one in 24,200 to one in 40,500 patients based on two dosage levels. It also advised leukemia in the previously listed adverse reactions in the blood disease area.

NEW LABELLING

The new FDA labelling says chloramphenicol should be used "only in those serious infections for which less potentially dangerous drugs are ineffective or contraindicated" and advised against the use of it in pregnancy and lactation.

Specifically, the drug is recommended for treatment of typhoid fever, serious infections caused by salmonella strains and diseases such as meningitis and cystic fibrosis.

RISK RATE

The estimated risk rate was based on a 1967 report by the California Medical Association and the state department of public health. The drug was also the subject of lengthy hearings recently before a Senate small business subcommittee.

That's right! It needs a good car under $2,000. And Cortina is it. Ford Cortina costs $1,995. We admit it's not far under $2,000, but then it really can't be. It just offers so much!

FIRSTLY—It's not a small car. It's big and roomy.

SECONDLY—It has lots of power and economy.

THIRDLY—Its solid unit body construction makes it durable and quiet.

FOURTHLY—It is safety engineered to conform to all North American safety standards.

We could go on and on about Cortina features, but to keep the price down, we keep these ads small.

Canoe Flips in Ontario Park

Rapids Kill Fraser

TORONTO (CP) — Blair Fraser, the 39-year-old Sydney, N.S., native who began a brilliant newspaper career in 1959 and became Ottawa editor of Maclean's magazine, was drowned Sunday while canoeing in Algoma Provincial Park.

Fraser was one of six members of Les Voyageurs Canoe Club on a weekend trip about 10 miles northwest of Ottawa when his canoe capsized near the Rollway Rapids on the Petawawa River, 40 miles northwest of Pembroke.

Fraser was deputy minister of lands and forests.

Fraser was one of Canada's best-known political commentators on radio and television and last month covered the Liberal leadership convention in Ottawa for the CTV network.

In 1951 and 1961, he was awarded the President's Medal from the Governor General's award board for the best articles written by a Canadian and published anywhere in the world.

Educated at Sydney Academy and Acadia University in Nova Scotia, Fraser began his newspaper career in 1959 working on all three English-language dailies then published in Montreal. He resigned from the Montreal Gazette in 1963 to become Ottawa editor of Maclean's.

In 1960, he accepted a two-year assignment as editor of Maclean's. He became overseas editor of the magazine in 1962 with headquarters in London.

He returned to Canada and the Ottawa editorship in 1963.

Last year, he wrote The Search for Identity, a candid analysis of the events and men who shaped Canada's post-war emergence as a middle power.

Fraser is survived by his wife Jean, on a trip to Paris at the time of his death, and two sons, John, 23, a secretary to the Canadian embassy in Warsaw, and Graham 22, a recent graduate of the University of Toronto. Dr. Solandt said.

* * *

"They were both very experienced canoeists and had they understood, they never would have continued on into the rapids. They went into a rapid that was far too much for the canoe they had."

"But once they got into it, there was no turning back. That rapid is very treacherous, very swift."

Major Gen. Rodger said that after the canoe was swamped, both he and Fraser clung to it, but were severely battered by rocks. He said he heard Fraser yell and believed he was dashed against a rock and knocked unconscious.

* * *

In 1954 on a cross-Canada canoe trip, Fraser passed through the same rapids with Dr. Solandt.

Other members of the group Sunday were D. M. Coolican, Toronto, vice-president of administration for Brasfield Light and Power; Eric Morse, Ottawa, national director of the Association of Canadian Cities.

Mao's Work Creates Unpleasant Thoughts

ROME — University of Rome students don't mind reading the little red book of The Thoughts of Mao Tse-tung but they don't care to translate them into Latin.

Ettore Paratore, 60, professor of Latin at the university, recently branded a "reactionary" by students who led lengthy demonstrations, decided the subject for exams delayed by the riots would be the translation of 400 words of Mao into Latin from Italian. The 280 students retaliated by demanding his resignation.

FREDERICTON — Former New Brunswick Progressive Conservative leader J. C. Van Horne launched libel actions against Quebec Le Soleil and the Toronto Globe and Mail. Reports said he claimed a Le Soleil article on or about Oct. 19, 1967, caused injury to his character, credit and reputation, and caused him to lose in a general election Oct. 23.

OTTAWA — The defence department said it is making a second review of the case of former air force sergeant Yves Landry, 36. He was discharged last year on medical grounds after running into criticism in 1966 at a Quebec air base for a memo saying the use of French on vouchers, memos and letters was banned in his seven-man supply unit.

Island First for Jubilee

Nerve Watcher Installed

By JOHN MATTERS

About 200 years ago, the wife of a professor in Bologna, Italy, was preparing some frogs' legs for dinner when she noticed that the apparently dead legs continued to move. She then realized that the frogs' legs were still alive.

At that moment, and with those peculiar convulsions, began an understanding of one of the most intriguing aspects of almost all living things — the role of electricity in the behavior of their cells.

Royal Jubilee Hospital last week installed a $12,000 machine which is the latest refinement in the pursuit started by Galvani in 1786.

It is called an electromyograph, an amazing piece of electronic gadgetry that will help doctors diagnose many diseases of the nerve and muscle systems before they have a firm and irreversible grip on their victims.

NERVE DAMAGE

The procedures, in the main, involve measurements of the velocity and intensity of exceedingly minute quantities of electrical energy.

The third installation of kind in British Columbia — others are at Vancouver General Hospital and Shaughnessy Hospital — it will enable doctors to spot signs of nerve and muscle damage which are impossible to find with most techniques.

In one month alone last fall, the Victoria neurologist who will operate Jubilee's equipment had to send six patients to Vancouver General and would have liked to investigate another 30.

TOTAL COST

It was such problems which convinced Royal Jubilee's junior auxiliary of the need for an electromyograph here. The volunteers raised $3,000, with the remainder of the total cost coming from British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service.

The equipment is exceedingly refined because it must measure the velocities of energy which travels about 150 feet per second through nerves. In many cases, the elapsed time has to be recorded over a distance of three to 15 inches.

For that reason, the measurements are in thousands of a second. Until space age electronics entered medicine almost a decade ago, the ability to make such measurements would have been laid to rest as only a scientific abstraction.

Solid-state circuitry, wired into equipment that can make permanent records of observations, is a characteristic of the electromyograph which enables it to produce reliable assessments of some of the most crippling and painful diseases that can afflict man.

In addition to dealing with split-second velocities, the electromyograph, through small electrodes inserted in the muscle, also measures potentials as small as five to 10-millionths of a volt.

MOTOR DISEASES

The information it collects on velocities and potentials is shown on a screen. Reference terms have been established allowing a neurologist, with relative ease, to diagnose virtually all types of palsies and dystrophies and motor neuron disease.

That means the pain in your wrist may be diagnosed, in the end, as having its origin in the spinal cord.

New Verdict:

Trucker Drove Too Fast

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Monday that a Vancouver truck driver was responsible for a 1961 traffic accident that caused one death and injury to a second man.

In a unanimous judgment the court said it agreed with the trial judge who found truck driver George Ronald Thompson was driving at an excessive speed in the circumstances and thereby was responsible for the resulting crash between his four-ton truck and a station wagon.

Charles A. Fontaine died and Peter Diaz Curbelo was injured as a result of the accident. Both lived at Williams Lake.

APPEAL REVERSED

The trial judge awarded Fontaine's family damages amounting to $37,500, against Thompson, while Curbelo was awarded $19,500. But the British Columbia Court of Appeal reversed the decision.

The accident occurred Sept. 26, 1961, on a straight stretch of highway between Yale and Hope.

The trial judge found that the truck speed of 50 miles an hour was excessive because the road was wet and slippery and because of the worn condition of one of its back tires.

Witnesses Escape

Lax Guards Blamed

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Monday a police report shows that the escape of three prisoners from a Drummondville, Que., court house April 30 was due to "carelessness and indifference" of eight guards.

Mr. Bertrand told the legislative assembly the eight provincial policemen involved will be called before a disciplinary committee to defend themselves. Penalties could include dismissal or suspension.

The escape led to the death of a蒙特利爾 policeman last Wednesday. Det-Sgt. Gilles Jean, buried Monday, was killed in an exchange of gunfire with one of the escapees — Yves St. Mard.

St. Mard subsequently committed suicide while police tried to nab him in an apartment building in the Montreal suburb of Rosemont. Claude Lévesque, who also had escaped, had given himself up earlier the same night, but the third man — Gaston Plante is still at large.

The trio escaped by sawing through bars of a court house cell where they were being held as witnesses for the trial of Jean-Jacques Gagnon, later acquitted of a murder charge.

Mr. Bertrand said an appeal will be launched in the case of Gagnon.

Medicare Terms Prepared

The provincial government is in the process of drafting orders-in-council which will set out the terms under which British Columbia will participate in the federal medical care insurance program, it was announced Monday.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, who met federal Health Minister Allan MacEachen in Ottawa last week to discuss the program, said he still could not make public any details of the scheme but an announcement would likely be made next week.

School Choirs Combine In Classy Performance

By BERT BINNY

Three large senior high school choirs combined to provide a most acceptable concert at the McPherson Playhouse Monday evening.

The largest representation came from Ellensburg, Wash., with full choir, a mixed ensemble called the Hi-Kords and a girls' sextet, the Treble Makers.

However, the program was their fourth in 24 hours and they concentrated on full choir numbers, thus spreading the load as far as possible.

NOTABLE TUNE

Of particularly high standard was their performance of Shaw's An Evening Pastoral. Their selection Water, Ripple and Flow was also notable.

They provided a widely varied series of items from spirituals to the massive work of such as Beethoven. The latter seemed to be a trifle too demanding, though the energetic 24 hours may have increased the difficulties.

OPENING ITEM

Their opening item, O Sing Your Songs, was pleasing.

The Ellensburg director is Coyne Burnett, who has been with the group for 11 years.

The Carson Graham high school choir, under Garth Williams, opened the evening with five items by a senior mixed choral ensemble and three by a senior girls' ensemble.

HOST SCHOOL

They seemed at their considerable best with Mozart's Lachrymosa and contrived some vocal gymnastics successfully in The Bamba and The Zihuatecan.

The host school for this occasion was Claremont senior high, whose singers filled the middle section of the program.

Destitute, Lost Souls Always Have Friend

By DON GAIN

Victoria is a beautiful and a friendly city to many, but to the man who is down on his luck, no place is beautiful or friendly.

But there's one organization in town that is a friend to the homeless, the destitute and the lost. It's the Salvation Army.

Ever since its inception, the Army has wrestled with the problem of homeless men. Even in good times, there are large numbers of these men who are unemployed and without shelter.

Instability

In many instances, the situation these men find themselves in is a result of their own instability, mental, physical or spiritual.

The Salvation Army operates men's social service centres in Victoria and Nanaimo which meet the needs of many thousands of men each year. The Army is not content merely to provide overnight accommodation and meals, but the concern is for the total man.

Rehabilitation can be a long process but, through its facilities, the Army has accomplished this regeneration.

Face World

It takes great pride in the number of men who have come to it in despair and left with a renewal of spirit and body, able to face the world.

In 1967, the Army supplied 16,338 beds and 28,192 meals for these men. They gave clothing to 131 and found jobs for 343.

Many of the homeless men are alcoholics and they are looked after by the Victoria Harbor Light Corps.

They get medical attention, good food and care and

Witness Describes Crash

A witness testified Monday in Central Magistrate's Court he saw a car driven by 13-year-old Gerald Carter strike a boy on a bicycle, stop and then run over the boy.

Carter, of 970 Dunford, has elected trial by judge without a jury on charges of criminal negligence and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Policeman Charged

NELSON (CP) — Constable Gordon McPhail of the Nelson city police force was charged Monday with criminal negligence in the shooting death of Walter Polson.

Polson, 21, was shot in the neck during investigation of a break-in at a Nelson store April 29. The investigation was conducted by the Nelson RCMP detachment by order of Dr. Gilbert Kennedy, deputy attorney-general.

Jury Trial Ordered By Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner Monday ordered trial by jury for 10 men charged with kidnapping and indecent assault, in a surprise move as the preliminary hearing of the case began.

The attorney-general invoked a little-used section of the Criminal Code which allows him to give direction in serious cases.

The 10, ranging in age from 17 to 24, are charged with kidnapping and indecently assaulting Jeanne Cannon between Feb. 21 and 24.

Each of the 10 elected trial by a judge alone on both charges, but it is understood the attorney-general's directive takes precedence.

A heated legal skirmish was touched off when the first crown witness, Dennis Lorne Goba, 24, asked for blanket protection under the Canada Evidence Act throughout his entire testimony and cross-examination.

Magistrate Maurice Mulligan advised him that in law he could not have blanket protection but could ask for and receive protection if forced to give evidence that incriminated him.

The crown alleges the negligence occurred Nov. 30 from a point in Colwood to a point in Sooke.

Magistrate J. A. Byers, after hearing evidence from seven witnesses, said he would commit Carter today for trial. The failing-to-remain charge will be spoken to them.

Gerry Evans, 223 Knotty Pine, said he turned onto Owens Road in Colwood at about 4:30 p.m. Nov. 30 and saw a car coming from Roberick Road onto Owens.

"He started fishtailing and at this time I saw the paper boy on his bike crossing the road," Mr. Evans said.

The car went onto the wrong side of the road and the boy, identified as Stephen Giles, rode to the shoulder of the road.

ON SIDE

"(The car) struck the boy when he was on the side of the road," Mr. Evans said. "The car was stopped and the boy was lying right in front of it. It started up again and ran over him."

He said he recognized the driver of the car as Carter, whom he knew before the incident.

Mrs. Mary Allen said she was waiting at the Sooke River bridge at about 4:50 p.m. Nov. 30 for an incoming car when her car was struck. She suffered a broken collarbone, lacerations and bruises.

AT BRIDGE

Constable Murray Dew said he attended the accident at the bridge and found one of the drivers to be Mrs. Allen and the other to be Carter.

Dr. Gordon Lott said he examined Stephen Giles at St. Joseph's Hospital and found his left collarbone broken and his liver lacerated.

The doctor operated and removed the right lobe of the liver, the first time such an operation had been performed in Victoria.

Cory State appeared for the crown and Hugh McMillan for the defence.

A motorist was fined a total $800 and had his licence suspended as a result of an accident Saturday afternoon on Quadra.

Derek Neale, 1725 Montelith, was fined $350 for impaired driving and $250 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said Neale struck an oncoming car on Quadra and failed to stop. He was stopped on Cadboro Bay Road by Oak Bay Police about 20 minutes later.

Police found a 20-year-old youth sleeping behind the wheel of a car in a ditch on Sooke Road near Jacklin early Sunday morning.

Douglas Anquod of Work Point Barracks pleaded guilty to taking the car without the

The Miramichi, commissioned in 1957 and placed in reserve in 1964, will be recommissioned into the fleet that day. She and HMCS Cowichan will conduct training exercises out of Esquimalt through the summer.

Sidney Magistrate's Court

Sheep Verdict Guilty

A 26-year-old man will be sentenced in Sidney Magistrate's Court May 22 for killing a sheep on Sidney Island March 21.

Robert Turnbull, Theis Lake Traler Court, was found guilty Monday by Magistrate D. G. Ashby.

He had been remanded from Thursday for judgment after pleading not guilty to the charge.

HEAD GUNSHOTS

Magistrate Ashby, summing up evidence, said the owner of Sidney Island, Jack Todd, had used gunshots from a .22 calibre rifle.

He was using powerful binoculars and was about 100 feet from a man who was firing a .22 rifle. He identified the man as Turnbull.

Mr. Todd had located a boat on the island, and put salt water in the fuel tank before going back to Sidney to the police.

FLAGGED BOAT DOWN

Mr. Todd had returned to the boat with RCMP Constable William Erickson.

They had met a boat with a single occupant, and made unsuccessful efforts to flag it down. They followed the boat toward Sidney, and eventually caught up with it.

Mr. Todd had identified the man in the boat as the man on the island. Constable Erickson had said Turnbull was in the boat and was in possession of two live rounds of .22 ammunition.

RIFLE NOT FOUND

No further evidence had been given of the rifle, other than that of Mr. Todd, who had seen it being fired on Sidney Island.

Constable Erickson had gone to Sidney Island after stopping

"He has a good business in Prince Rupert, and he has the makings of a good citizen," she said.

"He has joined different lodges and really made something out of himself."

Putting him in jail wouldn't do any good for him, his wife, or anyone else, she said.

"If he has done anything then he should be punished, but not by putting him in jail — there are too many rotten bad things that can happen in jail," she said.

Turnbull was remanded until May 22 for pre-sentence report.

Garden Notes

Tips on Radishes

By M. V. CHERNUT

I think I became incurably infected with the gardening fever on the day my dad handed me a packet of radish seeds and allowed me to sow a short row all on my own.

I can still remember the wild excitement I felt when the first heart-shaped seed leaves came pushing through the soil surface, and the impatience that drove me to keep pulling up the plants to see whether there were really and truly radishes forming underground. I imagine almost every child makes his first gardening experiment with this easiest of all vegetables.

While radish seeds never fail to germinate and grow, there are still a few tricks of the trade to be learned if you are to have mild and crisp radishes rather than peppery hot ones, hard woody ones, or the hollow, spongy, tasteless specimens so common in many vegetable plots.

While radishes are not in the least fussy as to their soil, they do have a mild preference for ground which is reasonably fertile and just a bit on the sandy side, well drained and neither alkaline nor very acid. For the technically minded, a pH range of 6.2 to 6.7 suits the radish to perfection.

Actually, the texture of the soil is far more important than its fertility or its acid-alkaline reaction. For this reason, I always make it a practice to mix a little peat moss into the top two inches, in a strip six inches wide, to keep the soil loose and friable and more retentive of moisture.

To guard against wormy radishes, this peat moss is wetted thoroughly first with a solution of diazinon in water, three tablespoonsfuls per gallon. I don't like to use strong poisons on such a quick-growing crop, and diazinon is about the safest control we have for these maggots.

The favorite radish in our family is Cherry Belle, a variety that originated in Holland some years ago and one which is stocked by seedmen everywhere. Cherry Belle is a little beauty, as attractive to the eye as to the palate, round and smooth and bright red all over, with no white tip. This is without doubt the fastest-growing of all our vegetables, maturing in only 23 days.

Another radish we grow is White Icicle, shaped like a small carrot and pure white in color. The flesh is crisp and mild in flavor; and strips of White Icicle contrast beautifully in the salad bowl with the bright red Cherry Belle.

One thing you must remember in the growing of tasty radishes: You can't leave them in the ground, like a food bank, until you are ready to pull and eat them. This works fine with carrots and parsnips, but radishes are at their peak of flavor and crispness for only a few days after they reach maturity, and if they are not used immediately, they start going downhill in quality.

For this reason, I think it is silly to devote a whole long row in the vegetable plot solely to radishes. They would all "turn in" at the same time, and you'd be eating radishes until they were coming out your ear. You couldn't possibly use them up fast enough, and before you could work your way through the glut, the unpulled roots would turn pitiful and hollow.

Little and often is the golden rule for sowing radish seed, and in our family we put in a couple of yards of row almost every weekend, spacing the seeds 1½ inches apart in the row. In this way we have a small new batch of radishes reaching their peak of crunchy goodness every week through the growing season.

ART BUCHWALD Puts Mother on Line

Bobby Squanders Allowance

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Rose Kennedy, mother of Sen. Robert Kennedy, added fuel to her son's presidential campaign when she told a reporter of Women's Wear Daily that she saw nothing wrong with spending a great deal of Kennedy money to win the Democratic nomination.

She was quoted as saying, "It's our money, and we're free to spend it any way we please ... it's part of this campaign business. If you have the money, you spend it to win. And the more you'll spend, the more you'll spend."

Mrs. Kennedy said her family was no different from the Rockefellers. "The Rockefellers are like us. We both have lots of money to spend on our campaigns."

I can just imagine a telephone conversation with Mrs. Kennedy and her son Robert: "Hello, Bobby, this is Mother. I heard you ran out of your allowance after the primaries in Indiana, and you're now borrowing from Ted."

"Yes, Mother. I tried to be careful, but the money just disappeared."

"Mother, you have to be more careful. I gave you more than enough money for Indians and I was hoping you'd have some left over for Nebraska."

"I'm sorry, Mother, but you can't imagine what television costs these days. And then the newspapers in Indianapolis were against me, so I had to spend money for posters and outdoor advertising and before I knew it, it was gone."

"Now, I don't want to lecture, Bobby, but you and I agreed that you would not indulge yourself in one State. After all, you still have Oregon and South Dakota and California to go, and if you start borrowing money now from your sisters and brothers you won't have any left for the summer."

"But, Mother," Bobby protested, "I think my allowance is too low. Nelson Rockefeller gets twice as much as I do and he isn't even running in the primaries."

"We're not the Rockefellers, son, and besides, he's older than you are. I could give you more money, but I'm trying to teach you thrift and the value of money. After all, if you're going to be President of the United States, you should have an appreciation for the worth of the dollar."

"Mother, you talk as if I'm throwing my allowance away. Every cent I spent can be justified. I didn't buy any candy or soda pop with it. It all went to the campaign."

"I believe you, Bobby. But there are these terrible stories the neighbors are spreading that Rose Kennedy's son is throwing money around like water. Now it's none of their business what we do with our money, but at the same time I hate to hear them talking about you this way."

"Teddy just called and told me you're using your Oregon money in Nebraska. I thought you told me Nebraska would be cheap."

"Teddy's a squealer. It's not true. I'll have plenty of money left for Oregon. Ted-dy's just angry because you gave me more allowance to run in the primary in the District of Columbia than you gave him to run for Senator of Massachusetts."

"I wish you boys would stop quarreling all the time over allowances. But Teddy did make a good point. If you spend all your money in the primaries, you won't have anything left over to run in the election. Don't you think you could put aside a little each week for a rainy day in November?"

"I'll try, Mother, but if you could just give me $100,000 more a week, I wouldn't have to keep asking you for money all the time. All the kids running have more dough than I do."

"We'll talk about it the next time I see you. Until then, try to be a little more careful. You don't have to buy prime time on television every time you get the urge."

"All right, Mother. But in the meantime, could you let me have my California primary allowance in advance? Ethel's having another baby."

Cilento Role Way-out

LONDON, (NANA) — Diana Cilento was working at Shepperton on Negatives, while her husband, Sean Connery, was dubbing dialogue for his Western with Brigitte Bardot and Stephen Boyd, Shalako — pronounced shall-ko — in Ireland. It's a crazy role for Diana, but not quiet as crazy for Sean who was a natural for the open-air epic, even though, Diana informed me, "he'd never ridden a horse before."

Negatives, she told me, was a best seller, about an English couple with an antique shop and they live above the shop. To get sex kicks they dress up as murderers. Crippen and his girl, who dressed as a boy, escape to North America, but they were caught. Diana is a German photographer who smacks a rat when she buys an antique. "I take them to Madame Tussaud's and show them Crippen as a waxwork in the chamber of horrors. The film is about the hidden side of a personality."

"How about The White Witch of Rose Hall?" I asked Diane. I had heard that this film, in which she would star and produce, had been abandoned. "It was supposed to be inflammatory, whipping the blacks and all that. But it's a true story of the slaves in Jamaica between 1820 and 1830 — mating them to have more slaves, breeding them like cattle. It was written by a colored man and I'm still going to make it in Jamaica."

Judd Bernard, the producer of Negatives, was a former press agent. He did very well producing Point Blank with Lee Marvin, and has three more films to make for Paramount and one for Universal. The next, Flat Out, will be filmed all over Paris — "It's a French Point Blank," Judd promised. "The next, Me, is the narcissist legend, and is a film about a film being made. And Cleo, by Frank Marsons (the playwright who wrote The Killing of Sister George). Cleo is a pure girl who has eight affairs but remains pure throughout!" The exclamation is mine.

Dirk Bogarde back from Rome all nicely tanned from making his TV commercial there for America — advertising sunglasses. The weather is a bit better in London now, after a week of rain, but you don't really have to wear sunglasses here.

Henry Fonda signed for his western with Sergio Leone after he called Eli Wallach, who had worked with him. "Eli told me it's one of the great experiences; you can't miss. He gets in back of your mind, back of your eyes." . . . Daughter Jane Fonda was calling from Paris, and all's well with the baby she expects in September.

Peter Sellers dropped into a London clinic. Nothing wrong, but he simply had to get away from people. Just for a few days. Peter has agreed to play three roles in The Experiment — if it is made in England . . . Fatalia's new film is now titled, The Voyage of Federico, and he wants Dennis Kray for the lead.

Quadrennial Chaos

With all the jostlings, jockeying and broken-field running in the current U.S. presidential sweepstakes, what do you imagine outsiders, such as Europeans, make of the quadrennial selection for the most powerful office in the world?

The most prevalent view was succinctly expressed some years ago, by the British political scientist, Prof. Harold J. Laski, when he wrote in one of his books on the American presidency:

"An American presidential campaign is like nothing else in the civilized world; and the critics of the system—which in its modern form is just 100 years old—have exhausted the language of vituperation in attack upon its character.

"The power of money; the persuasive power of hidden and corrupt influence, the undue authority of the 'doubtful' state; the overt and hidden prejudices against certain types of candidates; the deals which accompany the capture of a delegation; the ratiocinology of the 'favorite son'; the operation of the technique of the 'dark horse'; the exploitation of the stalking-horse; and, finally, the raucous, complex and hectic atmosphere of the convention itself; its well-improvised enthusiasm; its fanastic horseplay; its immunity to thought; its wild rumors; its incredible conspiracies . . .

And these words, of course, were written before television exercised so potent an influence in political campaigns; before the way a man looks or shaved or cuts his hair became of paramount importance; before the glamour and "charisma" of personalities played so large a role in the selection of candidates.

"All these characteristics," Professor Laski concludes, "none of which can ever suffer exaggeration, seem to the outsider, and especially to the European, about the worst possible way in which to choose a man to occupy the highest executive post in a democratic Commonwealth."

And these words, of course, were written before television exercised so potent an influence in political campaigns; before the way a man looks or shaved or cuts his hair became of paramount importance; before the glamour and "charisma" of personalities played so large a role in the selection of candidates.

Today it is even more of a show, and less of a sober selection, than in the era Laski was writing about.

In the past, perhaps, the U.S. could afford such high jinks. It had time and money to spare, a relatively unspoiled continent and wide margins for mistakes. Now, the world has shrunk; time is limited, resources are cramped, margins for mistake has narrowed ominously. There are fewer options in the world and in the U.S.; also fewer safety hatches to escape from blunders.

It all seems so childish, so chaotic, so unrealistic — this heroic scramble for public favor, this speaking in slogans instead of sentences, this brandishing of placards instead of principles, this barking and belling and promising of all things to all men. If presidential campaigns are so infantile, can policies be mature?

'Strong Odor of Alcohol' Death Crash Testimony

A Victoria man accused of criminally negligent driving had a "strong odor of alcohol" on his breath at the scene of an accident that killed car dealer Clifford Horwood, a Supreme Court jury was told Monday.

The evidence was from RCMP Constable Russell Borys at the trial of Louis Durham, 28, of 733 Wilson Street.

The policeman said he saw Durham seated on the front seat of a 1968 Chrysler after the accident, 12 miles north of Victoria on the Trans-Canada Highway Feb. 17.

IN AGREEMENT

While Constable Borys testified about an odor of alcohol, he agreed with defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie that the man spoke clearly and intelligently.

Also killed in the accident were Mr. Horwood's wife, Pearl, Mrs. Eleanor Tait and Mrs. Martha Bannerman, all travelling in a 1968 Citroen.

Missing Trio Found Safe

Shortly after air search and rescue operations began early Monday a teacher and two students from the Institute of Adult Studies here were found unharmed on one of the San Juan Islands.

The three, adrift for several hours after the engine on a 20-foot boat failed, paddled to a small cove on Satellite Island, spent the night there, then paddled a mile with the current Monday morning to Stuart Island.

"We really had no trouble at all," teacher Gordon Hartley said at his home Monday night.

The engine on Mr. Hartley's boat failed as he was on the way to Stuart Island Sunday morning with students David Huggett and Kenneth Webb.

"When it got to be late afternoon, we started to paddle toward the nearest island, Satellite," he said.

When the three reached Stuart Island in the morning, they reported to the American Coast Guard and were picked up and brought home by the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready.

Some divorced women appear to have been erroneously advised that they can claim alimony

Constable Borys said he saw Mr. Horwood behind the wheel, held by a seat belt. Another woman was in the front, the second was in the back seat and the third was in the ditch.

All four were unconscious.

GARDEN CITY

John Knaacky, an attendant with Garden City Ambulance Service, said a passenger from the Durham car, and two passengers from the Horwood vehicle, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in the ambulance in which he was working.

In the front seat was another patient, whom the witness could not identify as being present in the courtroom. This person had a "very strong smell of alcohol" and "didn't seem too concerned at all" about anyone other than his friend.

The patient in the front seat had a normal pulse and didn't seem to be in shock, although he was "quite slow" in his speech.

The trial, at which George McMinn is crown counsel, resumes at 10:30 a.m. today at the Law Courts.

It has been stated, he said, that they were taking such action on legal advice.

"With respect, this view seems to be in error," said Mr. Anderson. "A woman not being able to claim the status of wife is not in a position to claim maintenance . . ."

Candid opinions of Sooke district teenagers and parents about each other will be aired at 8 p.m. tonight at a public forum in Edward Milne high school.

Interviews videotaped by University of Victoria education professor Dr. Vance Peavey will be screened before debate begins.

Commerce students of Claremont high school will demonstrate their public speaking ability tonight following a course sponsored by the Comox Toastmasters Club.

Their windup dinner will be held at 7 p.m. in Holyrood House, attended by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Saanich school trustee Jack Armstrong.

Third Man Recovering From Fatal Car Crash

Peter Simpson, 22, of Toronto, remains in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries received in a car smash Friday night which claimed the lives of Roger McEwan, 20, of South Burnaby and Robert Rickward, 22, of Halifax.

The crash occurred when Esquimalt police were pursuing a car which matched the description of a car whose occupants were wanted for questioning about an armed robbery at Ernie's Fine Foods in the Hillside Plaza.

Saanich police said the home of Monty Aldous of 4590 Sumner, general manager of the B.C. Government Ferries, was entered through the basement Friday night. Two revolvers, a semi-automatic revolver, a gas pistol, 40 to 50 9-mm shells, seven CO<sub>2</sub> cylinders, a pair of binoculars and eight bottles of liquor were taken.

A car, the property of Melvin Butler of the same address, was also stolen.

After the crash, police took possession of $158 cash, a semi-automatic pistol, 40 rounds of ammunition, a gas pistol and CO<sub>2</sub> cylinders.

City police said Monday that no charges had been laid concerning the robbery. Saanich police said they were considering charges in connection with the house break-in and the car.

Perrault vs. Douglas

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Liberal leader Ray Perrault is expected to announce Wednesday that he will resign as an MLA and provincial party leader to contest the June 25 federal election.

There were strong indications Monday night that Mr. Perrault would run in the newly-created federal riding of Burnaby-Seymour, where NDP national leader Tommy Douglas is regarded as the man to beat.

Mr. Perrault said from Vancouver that he had called a press conference for 10 a.m. Wednesday to deal with rumors that he was entering federal politics.

Before meeting in private late Monday with the caucus of Liberal MLAs and members of his North Vancouver Capilano Liberal association executive to discuss his plans for the future, Mr. Perrault left little doubt as to his intentions.

"After meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau over the weekend, I feel satisfied that I can—if I decide to run and am nominated—make a useful contribution to this province and the country in the federal field," he said.

"Mr. Perrault said he found the prospect of being part of a new Liberal government under Mr. Trudeau 'tempting,' but added that it was a tough

Big Takeover Decade Away

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP)—Canada is within 10 or 15 years of the "point of no return" in increasing foreign control of its economy, T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said Monday.

He told a luncheon at nearby Kimberley the federal government has been willing to allow foreign interests to control two-thirds of the economy and now Prime Minister Trudeau "goes further."

"He's a continentalist. He makes no bones about it. He talks about a continental economic entity and that eventually means one political entity, dominated by the United States."

FINDINGS REPUDIATED

Douglas quoted the Watkins royal commission report as saying within 10 to 15 years 80 per cent of the economy will be foreign controlled "and they'll be able to take the rest without investing any new money."

Yet, said Douglas, as he

While hundreds of Poor Marchers shout "Freedom" with each blow, march leader Rev. Ralph Abernathy hammers nails in first sheller in Washington "shantytown" that will house marchers until U.S. Congress "does something about poverty and unemployment." Meanwhile symbolic midget train began rolling to U.S. capital from Marks, Minn., bearing 50 demonstrators bearing the rest for "Reverend City." —(AP)

Trudeau Looks at World

Outer Threat: The Have-Nots

EDMONTON (CP) — The overwhelming threat to Canada will not come from foreign investments or foreign ideologies, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

"It will come instead from the two-thirds of the peoples of the world who are steadily falling farther and farther behind in their search for a decent standard of living."

Trudeau, giving the convocation address at the University of Alberta, where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree, said the problem is not new, "but its very size, involving some 2,500,000,000, makes it qualitatively different from what it has been in the past."

Speaking softly — almost gently — throughout his 40-minute speech, Trudeau dwelt on the need for more aid to underdeveloped nations.

"Never before in history has the disparity between the rich and the poor, the comfortable and the starving, been so extreme; never before have mass communications so vividly informed the sufferers of the extent of their misery..."

Trudeau said that rights and privileges demanded and exercised by others "only serve to magnify in the underprivileged person the

Greeting to Stanfield

'You're Our Only Hope'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A five-hour tour by jet-powered helicopter swept Conservative Leader Stanfield into five scattered communities Monday to greet smiling Newfoundlanders.

Leaning into a numbing Atlantic wind that blew colder by the hour, Stanfield said his audiences they would best be served by voting June 25 for a Maritimer as prime minister. He said he had the experience to deal with the area's economic problems after his years as premier of Nova Scotia.

"I can't wave any magic wand over the island or produce any sudden prosperity," he told each group. "But to get results Ottawa has to work closely with the people of the Atlantic provinces."

Crowds of about 250 turned out to see the Conservative leader at the Avalon Peninsula towns of Placentia—first capital of Newfoundland under French rule during the 1700s

— and the fisheries-based community of Carbonear.

Stanfield slipped one scheduled speech in favor of a 15-minute drive around Bell Island, where 6,000 people live almost entirely on social welfare payments following the 1966 closure of the Dominion Steel and Coal Co. iron ore mine.

The Bell Islander who drove Stanfield had mounted a sign on his car reading: "Our only hope, Robert."

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson told his Labor party Monday night that failure to support him this week on a bill to curb wages could bring down the government and lead to mass unemployment in Britain.

Wilson confronted 143 Labor members of Parliament who oppose his prices and incomes bill, a cornerstone of his efforts to make devaluation of the pound work. The group has trade union backing and forms more than a third of Wilson's strength in the House of Commons.

"The logical consequence would be a Tory government with a mandate for anti-trade union legislation based on severe unemployment," he said. Wilson won applause for his remarks, but some 70 MPs were reported still unconvinced of the need for government powers to hold down wages over the next 18 months.

It was understood that the bill would make no direct reference to a 3.5 per cent ceiling for wage increases. Instead, government sources said, the bill would refer to figures in a document published this year that contains the ceiling.

Wilson faced the dissident with his authority weakened by local-election losses last week and concern for a shaky pound.

The pound dropped Monday to its lowest level since devaluation last November, $2.3824. But it recovered slightly, to $2.3965, as the chancellor of the exchequer, Roy Jenkins, denied charges of government lying about the state of Britain's financial reserves.

Margaret Target
Of Protest

NORWICH, England (Reuters) — A small group of students demonstrating shouting "Vietnam murderer" burned burning paper Union Jacks at the foot of Princess Margaret at East Anglia University Monday night.

Margaret, 38, ignored the tattered and flaming flags beneath her feet and continued her tour of the university.

Rosalind Wins A Crown

DUNCAN—Tall, dark-haired Rosalind Modeste became Miss Cowichan Saturday night, when she was crowned by the 1967 queen, Miss Joan Thomas.

The crowning was one of the highlights of the 73rd annual Cowichan Indian Corpus Christi Cowichan Indian sports held over the weekend.

The other two candidates were named princesses: Glenda Joa and Della Rice.

The three girls were judged by Mrs. Dennis Hogan, wife of a North Cowichan alderman, Mrs. Rose Gibbons, supervisor of the Duncan Shelled Workshop, and Mrs. Myrtle Muldoe, wife of an official of the Duncan Indian Agency.

The Cowichan Challenge Trophy, which has been awarded for the past 19 years to the person who wins the most contests during the two day sports event, was won by Jeff Thomas, of Nanaimo.

Young Indian Shows Way

TOTORO—A young Indian girl is heading for a promising business career.

Rosalie Irene Williams was born at Opitsa in 1947 and lived until she was old enough to attend school, with her parents, Barney Williams and the late Pauline Williams.

She was six when she entered Christie's School, where her father was boatbuilder and carpenter.

BUSINESS SCHOOL

After graduating in 1963, she went to Mission High school for two years, and then to St. Thomas Aquinas high school, North Vancouver, and St. Anne's Academy, Victoria.

About a year ago, she enrolled at a Victoria business school. She took an accounting and specialized business course. She graduated a few weeks ago and was hired a job with the federal timber station at Nanaimo which she accepted.

Mr. Williams is one of the five-mile, 11-man canoe race for the B.C. championship Musqueam Dogout, Seven Sisters crossed the finish line well ahead of Island Queen from Kuper Island and St. Therese from North Vancouver.

It was the climax of the Cowichan Indian Corpus Christi Sports.

Whites and Indians came in droves to watch the various dancing groups at the Long House lit by an open fire.

Chief Wins

Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife entered a separate dancing contest against Cowichan Chief Dennis Aphorse and lost.

Non-Indian judges were North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton and incumbent member of parliament for Nanaimo-Cowichan and The Islands Colin Cameron.

The all-American singers and dancers from Seattle won first prize in the dancing competition. The Cowichan Indian Playboys Trinques were second.

Song Contest

The order was reversed for the singing competition.

Burrard Chief Dan George and his group presented a highlight Saturday night with west coast songs and dances, and the white-haired chief reciting Centennial Lament.

Big Takeover Decade Away

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP)—Canada is within 10 or 15 years of the "point of no return" in increasing foreign control of its economy, T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said Monday.

He told a luncheon at nearby Kimberley the federal government has been willing to allow foreign interests to control two-thirds of the economy and now Prime Minister Trudeau "goes further."

"He's a continentalist. He makes no bones about it. He talks about a continental economic entity and that eventually means one political entity, dominated by the United States."

FINDINGS REPUDIATED

Douglas quoted the Watkins royal commission report as saying within 10 to 15 years 80 per cent of the economy will be foreign controlled "and they'll be able to take over the rest without investing any new money."

Yet, said Douglas, as he

Outer Threat: The Have-Nots

EDMONTON (CP)—The overwhelming threat to Canada will not come from foreign investments or foreign ideologies, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

"It will come instead from the two-thirds of the peoples of the world who are steadily falling farther and farther behind in their search for a decent standard of living."

Trudeau, giving the convocation address at the University of Alberta, where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree, said the problem is not new, "but its very size, involving some 2,500,000,000, makes it qualitatively different from what it has been in the past."

Speaking softly—almost gently throughout his 40-minute speech, Trudeau dwelt on the need for more aid to underdeveloped nations.

"Never before in history has the disparity between the rich and the poor, the comfortable and the starving, been so extreme; never before have mass communications so vividly informed the sufferers of the extent of their misery..."

Trudeau said that rights and privileges demanded and served to magnify the underprivileged person

Greeting to Stanfield

'You're Our Only Hope'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A five-hour tour by jet-powered helicopter swept Conservative Leader Stanfield into five scattered communities Monday to greet smiling Newfoundlanders.

Leaning into a numbing Atlantic wind that blew colder by the hour, Stanfield told his audiences they would best be served by voting June 25 for a Maritimer as prime minister. He said he had the experience to deal with the area's economic problems after his years as premier of Nova Scotia.

"I can't wave any magic wand over the island or produce any sudden prosperity," he told each group. "But to get results Ottawa has to work closely with the people of the Atlantic provinces."

Crowds of about 250 turned out to see the Conservative leader at the Avalon Peninsula towns of Placentia, first capital of Newfoundland under French rule during the 1700s

—and the fisheries-based community of Carbonear.

Stanfield skipped one scheduled speech in favor of a 15-minute drive around Bell Island, where 6,000 people live almost entirely on social welfare payments following the 1966 closure of the Dominion Steel and Coal Co. iron ore mine.

The Bell Islander who drove Stanfield had mounted a sign on his car reading: "You're our only hope, Robert."

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson told his Labor party Monday night that failure to support him this week on a bill to curb wages could bring down the government and lead to mass unemployment in Britain.

Wilson confronted 143 Labor members of Parliament who oppose his prices and incomes bill, a cornerstone of his efforts to make devaluation of the pound work. The group has trade union backing and forms more than a third of Wilson's strength in the House of Commons.

"The logical consequence would be a Tory government with a mandate for anti-trade union legislation based on severe unemployment," he said. Wilson won applause for his remarks, but some 70 MPs were reported still unconvinced of the need for government powers to hold down wages over the next 18 months.

It was understood that the bill would make no direct reference to a 3.5 per cent ceiling for wage increases. Instead, government sources said, the bill would refer to figures in a document published this year that contains the ceiling.

Wilson faced the dissidents with his authority weakened by local-election losses last week and concern for a shaky pound.

The pound dropped Monday to its lowest level since devaluation last November, $1.3624. But it recovered slightly, to $1.3665, as the chancellor of the exchequer, Roy Jenkins, denied charges of government lying about the state of Britain's financial reserves.

Margaret Target Of Protest

NORWICH, England (Reuters)—A small group of student demonstrators shouting "Vietnam murders" hurled burning paper Union Jacks at the feet of Princess Margaret at East Anglia University Monday night.

Margaret, 38, ignored the tattered and flaming flags beneath her feet and continued her tour of the university.

School Clerks on Strike

Duncan Pupils Without Buses

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN—More than 3,000 of the Cowichan district's 5,000 public school students will not be catching the school bus this morning.

The striking clerks, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, refused a school board request to allow bus drivers to cross picket lines to make their runs.

The school board says school will go on, and parents are responsible for getting their children to school.

Glasses Carrying On

At a meeting behind closed doors Monday night, Cowichan school board decided schools will not be closed.

"Classes will carry on as usual. Schools can be closed only by the authority of the minister of education or the medical health officer," chairman Joe Frumento said.

At noon Monday, the board met with the employees' representatives at the Duncan headquarters of the IWA.

Chairman Frumento said "unfortunately, CUPE would not agree to allow IWA drivers to cross picket lines."

"Parents are therefore requested to co-operate in the situation by transporting their children for the duration of the strike."

He said the board also re-

Panama Locks Up Vote After Election Violence

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Officials withheld results of Panama's presidential election after street violence broke out in the capital Monday but there were signs that Arnulfo Arias, the opposition candidate, led in unofficial counting.

The apparent closeness of the contest sharpened tempers among rival activists in this city of 300,000. Two were shot dead and five or more wounded in several incidents.

Wind Defied

Circus
Ends
With Bang

By SUSAN MAYSE

There was a loud bang, and the helmeted head of 22-year-old Hugo Zucchini emerged from a sequin-spangled cannon into the teeth of a 38-mile-an-hour wind.

He dropped on his stomach into the safety net, about 20 yards away. The crowd of 1,500 cheered and clapped.

It was the finale of the Gatti-Charles Circus, which opened Monday afternoon in the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre to an almost full house. Most of the audience were children under 10.

OLD FAVORITE

Cotton candy, an old favorite, was everywhere, including people's hair.

Aerial acrobatics, both indoors and out, held everyone's attention. Two groups often performed at the same time in different rings.

Despite the skill of the human performers, the animals stole the show. The stars were the elephants, the chimpanzees, and a bear.

OLD HANDS

All of them, said head trainer Charles Allen, are old hands at performing. They have appeared many times in movies and on television, as well as in the circus.

The highlight and grand finale of the show was the human cannonball. Zucchini, son of the man who 20 years ago introduced the act, was fired from a cannon to land safely in a net, as he will be twice daily until Thursday.

Both this and the other outdoors act, a group of trapeze artists, were in some danger from the strong winds that were blowing at the time, but there were no accidents.

NOTED GUEST

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will attend this evening's performance of the circus, which is being sponsored by the Victoria City Police Union.

Performances are at 4:30 and 8 p.m.

Proceeds will go to the Solarium, Cerebral Palsy, the Victoria Police Youth Band, and the Victoria Boys' Club.

Hospital Phasing-Out Plan Irks Veteran Legionnaire

The phasing-out of Veterans' Hospital—recommended by the recent Agnew-Packham report—was attacked Monday by a member of the Royal Canadian Legion, who called on Prime Minister Trudeau to back up promises made in 1964 by Prime Minister Pearson.

Carl Fallas of 3041 Donald, a former zone commander and president of the Pro Patria Branch, had this to say:

"The Legion is disturbed at the efforts that seem to be being made to take the control of the Veterans' Hospital from its present officers and place it in the hands of other authorities."

INTEGRATION

The Agnew-Packham report recommended the hospital be integrated with Royal Jubilee.

Mr. Fallas recalled Prime Minister Pearson's promises in August, 1964, at the time arrangements were being made for the transfer of certain DVA hospitals.

Mr. Pearson said, at the time, there would be no change

"which will remove control of veterans' admissions and their treatment and their dormitory care from the department of veterans' affairs. Moreover, there will be full consultation by the department with veterans' organizations in the area before any changes are made."

ONE CONCERN

At that time, Mr. Pearson said the government had only one concern: "to guarantee to our veterans the high standard of treatment and service to which they are entitled and must continue to be entitled—even in the face of the doctor shortage and the changing nature of the patient load in our DVA hospitals."

The prime minister summed up the question when he said the government was "not following a right course or one which is intended in a short time to solve all hospital and related problems. We are not going to rush into any radical change, and we are not going to make any change of any kind that will operate against the interests and the welfare of the veterans."

FOR BACKUP

Mr. Fallas called Monday on the present prime minister, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, to back up Mr. Pearson's promises.

He also called on the government to make sure the Royal Canadian Legion had a representative at a meeting in Victoria May 29, when Dr. K. S. Ritchie, director-general of treatment services, will be here to discuss the matter with the medical advisory board of the Veterans' Hospital, representatives of Royal Jubilee Hospital and the provincial government's health and welfare department.

PROVIDED FOR

Mr. Fallas said there are more than 100 First World War veterans waiting to be admitted to Veterans' Hospital under Class 29. This class of patient surrenders his income to the hospital. Mr. Fallas said, and he is then provided for by the hospital.

He said more and more war veterans were coming to Victoria to live and to retire. There is a far greater percentage of aging war veterans here than in other parts of the country.

AVERAGE AGE

"We need the facilities here," he said, "and for this reason

they shouldn't be handed over to another hospital."

He said the average age of First World War veterans in Victoria was 75, and the average age of those of the Second World War almost 50.

NATO Test

QORs
Head
Norse

The 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, based in Victoria, will leave next month for Norway to serve as the key force in a NATO exercise in the far north.

The defence department announced at Ottawa that the battalion and support elements would be flown to Norway beginning June 3 for an exercise near Tromso, 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Called Polar Express, the exercise will include armed forces from Norway, Britain, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and the United States.

The Victoria contingent includes 700 men and 100 vehicles.

In addition to the Queen's Own will be men from the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, at Petawawa, Ont., a squadron of Royal Canadian Engineers from Chilliwack, and a logistic support group from Calgary. The exercise ends June 22.

Travel Agents
Sample City

Victoria became an international meeting place Monday for 70 travel agents from Europe and California.

They came here on the first leg of a five-day B.C. tour sponsored by the provincial government and Canadian Pacific Airlines, which operates direct flights from Vancouver to San Francisco and Amsterdam.

"Currently we have 11 in the field."

The national president said it was unfortunate that he didn't have a chance to speak to the members before the meeting.

"I was surprised by the decision. I had no prior knowledge that this would happen," he said.

STILL TIME

However, he pointed out, there is still time for the Victoria party to nominate a candidate.

Victoria's Progressive Conservative federal candidate Eric Channing said Monday night that he saw advantages in the absence of Soored candidates.

"I rather expect it will make the issue more clear cut," he said.

Victoria Riding

No Candidate
For Sooreds

Victoria's Social Credit party decided Monday not to field a candidate in the June 25 federal election.

This is the first time since the federal election of 1949 the Victoria Sooreds have not been in the race. Herbert Bruch, national party president, said after the meeting.

HOPE THEY CHANGE

The nomination meeting in a Cook Street Hall was attended by 63 members who approved an executive recommendation that they "do not nominate a candidate at this time."

"I hope they change their minds," Mr. Bruch said. "I'd like to see a full slate of 23 Social Credit candidates in B.C."

Mr. Fallas said there are more than 100 First World War veterans waiting to be admitted to Veterans' Hospital under Class 29. This class of patient surrenders his income to the hospital. Mr. Fallas said, and he is then provided for by the hospital.

He said more and more war veterans were coming to Victoria to live and to retire. There is a far greater percentage of aging war veterans here than in other parts of the country.

Poison Inquest Told:

Separation Sought
At Time of Death

Adrien Augustus Stuart Law was seeking a legal separation from his wife at the time of his death, a coroner's jury was told in Saanich Law Court, Monday night.

A letter, which his wife, Muriel Beverley Law, said she received two days before his March 24 death, was read when the inquest into his death resumed, after its adjournment on May 6.

In it lawyer Ian Stewart said Mr. Law had a serious heart condition and had been told he would die within four months if tension in the home was not lifted.

The letter suggested Mrs. Law find an apartment within two weeks. It also promised monetary settlements.

NOT ACCIDENTAL

When the inquest opened last week, the jury was told that Mr. Law's stomach contained a lethal dose of potassium cyanide.

Saanich Det. Sgt. Robin Stewart told the jury of going to the Law home at 232 Macdonald Drive on April 9.

He had told Mrs. Law that from information he had received her husband's death couldn't have been accidental.

"It was either murder or suicide," he had told her.

LOADED PISTOL

After they had talked for a while she had given him a fully loaded .45 caliber automatic pistol.

He had searched the house and found a bottle which, according to earlier testimony, contained crystals identified as potassium cyanide.

In a glass tobacco jar in the room in which Mr. Law had been found dead, Sgt. Stewart said he also found a small glass vial containing white particles, which according to earlier testimony were identified as cyanide.

Sgt. Stewart told the inquest, presided over by Edmund Jorre de St. Jorre, that he had checked with VLA, under which the house was being purchased, and had been told that Mrs. Law could have been evicted from the house.

"But upon the death of her husband she inherits the home and it goes into her name," he added.

"If the VLA statute is as far-reaching as that it should be destroyed," remarked the coroner.

WITH DOCTOR

Mrs. Law testified under the protection of the B.C. Evidence Act and the Canada Evidence Act.

She said her husband had had difficulty with his health going back about one year.

She had made an appointment for him with the family doctor, who had later told her that Mr. Law was taking 22s because of tension in the home.

"I was unaware of tension in the home," said Mrs. Law.

She said that in 1953, a year after their marriage, Law had attempted suicide in the garage of their home.

She had found him in the car, and he was unconscious.

DRINKING STOPPED

The attempt had come after a drinking bout, but Mr. Law had joined Alcoholics Anonymous in 1954, and had not had a drink since then.

At the time of his death he was sure he was worried about pressures of his job.

She had received letters from Mr. Law's lawyer on March 8 and on March 22 informing her that her husband wanted a separation.

She said that after receiving the letters she had told him she would kill both him and herself.

"I didn't think about what weapon I would use," she said.

"I had been aware for some time that he was mentally disturbed from time to time," said Mrs. Law.

"When the pressure was on he was apt to be agitated and say irrational things," she added.

MORE RAPIDLY

"There were many unrelated things he said that made me realize his mind was deteriorating more rapidly than I had thought," said Mrs. Law.

She said her husband had been taking a muscle relaxant, 22s, and Bantron—a preparation to help a person stop smoking.

She had been afraid that he was taking too many pills and had telephoned the doctor's office to inform him of this.

Mr. Law had spoken about leaving her, but had never been very definite as to why, except that I never left him alone," she said.

She had never suspected that there was another woman.

"There was a woman who took photographs with him," said Mrs. Law, adding that photography had been her husband's hobby.

"There were people who thought it was unusual, but I didn't think it was. It was just someone interested in the same hobby as photography as him, and who happened to be a woman."

The coroner suggested the average Victoria woman would have been jealous of a woman who went out with her husband sharing his hobby.

"Who suggested I am an average woman?" asked Mrs. Law.

"I was secure," she said. "I packed lunches for them both."

She had been told in May, 1967, that her marriage was in jeopardy, but they had had a lovely summer together after that.

The inquest will continue in Saanich Law Court at 7:30 p.m., May 22, when the coroner is expected to give his summary, and the jury to consider a verdict.

Organist, pianist Earl Grant fills arena with deep tones

She had wide, inviting eyes and more curves than the Malashat.

It was very nice just to watch her sitting there all curled up like a kitten.

But then she opened her mouth to sing and the whole picture was shattered. She sounded exactly like a vacuum cleaner.

There were odds and ends to be cleaned up at the last minute, something that accounted for the fact that a vacuum cleaner was left running unnoticed eight beside one of many TV sets in the new and large home show section of the fair.

The sound on the set had been turned down and the attractive but nameless singer wasn't much competition for the vacuum cleaner, except possibly that she was somewhat more sharply.

There was nothing quite so outlandish blocking the way of Earl Grant when he bounced front and centre a few minutes later in the arena. One of America's top entertainers, the vibrant Grant sounded exactly like himself whether he was singing, or playing the organ and piano.
